Convention Events

IT'S PLEASANT to have a whole day with no session of the Democratic convention. But the day of rest is a restless day for the candidates. They and their backers will put in the usual eighteen hours of ceaseless talk, struggles and deals.

Most of it leads nowhere, and those that think they are "running" for the Presidency are really going around in a circle.

MEN WITH real power, that use Presidents, pull strings and get what they want from one party or the other, are not running in circles. They are arranging things so that they will have the right man in Washington, or, at least, a reasonably "right man," no matter which party wins.

THEY occasionally slip up—very rarely, but once in a while. And occasionally a man approved by them does not meet their expectations. Ask George Harvey, he can give you details.

THEY ARE determined, those high-class managers of the people's affairs, that they will not have McAdoo. They learned once for all, when he was running the Treasury and the railroads that he failed to recognize their right to run the country.

He seemed to have less respect for one hundred million organized dollars than for ten or twenty millions of unorganized voters. He let railroad workers make big wages, which, of course, came out of railroad profits, and worst of all, those wages had to be kept up after McAdoo left.

THERE IS not quite as much financial worry about the Democratic nominee as there was at first.

Thanks to the bitter religious fight which now becomes inevitably the main Democratic issue, Democratic chances of victory have dropped at least 50 per cent.

Bryan saw what was coming when he begged the convention "not to carry a religious fight into every election district in the country." But that is precisely what the Democratic party has done, and it is too late to back out.

REPUBLICANS are much cheered by the fighting among their dear Democratic friends.

DEMOCRATIC FIGHTING AND WHEAT PRICES STEADILY RISING—such is the outlook for a cheerful campaign, as the Re[illegible] see it now.

If the Democrats keep on fighting about religious liberty, as they will, "in every election district," and if wheat goes close to $1.50, as the big Republicans intend it shall, Mr. Coolidge may go fishing from the Mayflower and enjoy himself, free from worry.

IF FARMERS have any wheat unsold from the last crop—they usually have none when the price goes up—let them hang on to it. And if they are wise they will hold for high prices the wheat soon to be threshed.

When the really big people want wheat to go up, as they do now, it goes up. They have the power to make it go. It is not like one individual, professional wheat gambler, or little pool, trying to fight the wolves of the "short side."

THE GRAINS, corn especially, and cotton and stocks, will travel upward with the wheat. What Republican victory, BIG VICTORY, demands is a prosperity boom. You'll have it.

Readers may remember that this writer, when cotton was be low 25, announced that it would travel up to 35. It did, moving steadily and higher than 35 What the big fellows want really happens.

THERE are grains of comfort for all in the Saturday meeting of the big convention at least, the religious fight was brought out into the open, thor oughly threshed out. The 1,000 extra policemen were not needed to prevent physical fighting. But that, as Mr. Bryan might say, was only a "Mispah." Absence of

Fall and Doheny's Son Also Accused of Graft and Bribery in the Oil Scandal

Washington, June 30.—Indictments were returned by the Federal Grand Jury today against Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior; Harry F. Sinclair and E. L. Doheny, Sr., oil operators, and E. L. Doheny, Jr., as an outgrowth of the leasing of naval oil reserves.

Four indictments were returned. The first named Fall, Doheny, Sr., and Doheny, Jr., charging them with conspiracy to defraud the government in connection with the leasing of the California reserve.

In the second Fall and Sinclair were accused of conspiring to defraud in connection with the Teapot Dome lease.

The third indictment charged Fall with accepting a bribe of $100,000 for using his official influence in the California leases in behalf of Doheny, Sr.

The two Dohenys, in the fourth indictment, were charged with inducing Fall, in behalf of Pan-American Petroleum Company, by the "unlaw-

WINS LOVE OF MILLIONAIRE BY MUSIC

A story-book romance involving a poor girl, a rich man, a chance meeting and love at first sight will reach its happy ending on Wednesday next in the marriage of Miss Alice Golding of Newton Centre and W. Andrew Luce, a Brookline millionaire.

Mr. Luce is fifty-nine years old, president of the National Fireworks Company and the Morris Ireland elect in Brookline. Miss Golding is elect in Brookline. Miss Goldnig is the sister of his typist.

Two years ago they met in the millionaire's office. Miss Golding was in town to shop and had dropped in to see her sister. The latter pinch hitting for Cupid unawares, introduced them, and the rest of the story is that of the ardent pursuit

COAKLEY WINS ON 6 COUNTS

Judge Orders Verdict of "Not Guilty" on These, but Four More Are Yet to Be Settled

Verdicts of not guilty on six of ten counts in one indictment, charging Daniel H. Coakley and William J. Corcoran with conspiracy to extort, will be ordered by Judge Whiting, presiding over the case in East Cambridge Superior Court.

The trial justice announced today that he would order the not guilty verdicts on the six counts be specified.

These counts were dropped following arguments by Attorney Feeney, counsel for Coakley, and William E. Weeks, counsel for Corcoran. The arguments began Friday.

A general conspiracy indictment is still standing; also the four surviving counts in the original indictment of ten counts. The counts dropped include three charging written threats and three charging printed communications.

On the motion of Attorney Feeney, the testimony of Harry E. Levenson of an alleged conversation with Corcoran, dealing with the statement, "I guess Coakley has trimmed us" in the Mishawum case, was stricken from the record.

Feeney today argued a motion to have certain other evidence stricken from the record.

The jury was absent during today's proceedings. Coakley returned from New York and arrived at the courthouse early.

KIDNAPED, BRANDED BY KLANSMEN

Rochester, N. H., Man Tells of Torture Because He Became a Roman Catholic

Lawrence, June 30.—Nelson Burroughs, an organizer of the Knights of Columbus in Rochester, N. H., appeared at police headquarters here today and reported that he was kidnaped on June 11, held a prisoner in a shack on the outskirts of the village of Plaistow and branded with a red hot iron when he refused to renounce the Roman Catholic faith.

In support of his story, the police say, he showed the letter "K. K." burned into his chest.

Burroughs explains that the men meant to make it "K. K. K.," but he made such an outcry they desisted.

For months Burroughs has been receiving anonymous communications advising him to forswear the Catholic church and return to Protestantism, he says. Some years ago he became a Catholic, and shortly thereafter organized a council of the K. of C. in Rochester, N. H., where he still lives. He is a past grand knight of the council.

There was a hue and cry in Rochester when he disappeared, and it was remembered that he had been receiving threatening letters, but nothing was done about it.

On June 11 Burroughs said goodby to his wife and left Rochester for Dover on business. Taking up the story there, he says:

"I was walking along a lonely bit of road in Rochester when a machine drew up at the sidewalk and one of the occupants offered me a lift. He seemed a most affable fellow and I got in."

The Lawrence police gather that some time thereafter there were some drinks procured in a camp, and

Braves Field, June 30.—The Braves opened a week at home by taking on the Phillies today in a double header. They play the Quakers also tomorrow and Wednesday, both single contests.

The series is more or less important in the Brave career, as three lickings will topple the Tribe into seventh place. As the Phils haven't won three in a row since the dark ages, nobody was worrying much about that.

Bill Cunningham, the club's leading hitter, made his first Boston appearance since he injured his side in a collision with Ernie Padgett more than three weeks ago.

FIRST INNING.

Phillies—Sand singled to centre. Harper was called out on strikes. Williams singled, sending Sand to third. Schultz fanned. Wrightstone singled, scoring Sand. Ford filed to Stengel. ONE RUN.

Braves—Wrightstone threw out Bancroft. Powell doubled to left. Cunningham tripled, scoring Powell. McInnis filed to Williams, Cunningham scoring. Tierney fouled to Wilson. TWO RUNS.

2 LEADERS DRAWING AWAY

Show Small Increases as Favorite Sons Are Discarded

Madison Square Garden, New York, June 30.—There was no nomination on the fourth ballot in the Democratic National Convention today. The balloting as on the three previous counts failed materially to alter the relative position of the two leaders, McAdoo and Smith.

The fourth ballot, however, removed another favorite son candidate from the field. He was Senator Kendrick of Wyoming, whose votes were divided between McAdoo and Smith.

The third ballot had removed Governor Sweet of Colorado from the field.

The positions of the leaders on the fourth ballot were: McAdoo, 443 6-10; Smith, 260; McAdoo had gained six votes and Smith had gained four and a half.

After challenges respecting the unit rule, two Missouri delegates had a brush, but the State's 36 stayed solid for McAdoo under the unit rule, despite charges from challengers that the majority there did not ex-

GREATEST TOLL OF TORNADO AT STATE THEATRE IN LORAIN

GOVERNOR DONAHEY ASKS HELP OF OHIO PEOPLE FOR STRICKEN TOWNS

Cleveland, June 30 (A.P.)—Ninety-four persons were known to be dead in Ohio today as a result of Saturday's severe wind, rain and electrical storm which swept the coast of Lake Erie from Sandusky to Lorain, wrecking a large portion of Lorain and parts of Sandusky.

Several hundred persons were reported injured, several score of them seriously, and the property damage was estimated at more than $37,000,000.

Following is a tabulation of the Ohio storm damage:

Lorain—Seventy dead, several hundred probably injured and property damage estimated at more than $25,000,000.

Sandusky—Six dead, about 100 injured with property damage estimated at more than $1,500,000.

Cleveland—Seven dead, with small property loss.

Mantua—Three dead.

Akron—One dead and property damage estimated at between $500,000 and $1,000,000.

Warren—One dead and property damage $200,000.

French Creek—Three killed, twelve houses demolished or badly damaged.

Near Weymouth—Two children drowned.

Salem—One dead.

Alliance—No casualties, but 100 reported rescued by police from flooded homes.

Elyria—Virtually no damage.

Cedar Point—Six cottages blown down; no casualties.

Vermilion—Small damage from heavy rain, but no casualties.

Norwalk—Creek Valley residents make preparation to leave their homes as water works reservoir weakens from heavy rains.

One thousand militiamen are on guard duty at all roads leading into the city and throughout the devastated territory.

When an hour after the tornado had spun across the city Saturday evening, ghouls were busy.

The body of a young girl was found high in the branches of a tree, itself untouched by the storm. She evidently had been among the several hundred bathers who took refuge in the Lakeview bath house during the severe rainstorm that came just before the rush of the tornado.

Greatest Havoc of Storm in Lorain

Lorain, O., June 30 (A.P.).—After a night of utter darkness, punctured occasionally by the flashing gleam of a military automobile or a flashlight in the hands of the guards, Lorain awoke today to find State militia men in complete control and various storm areas forbidden to everyone. The loss is now placed at sixty.

New military passes were issued early today and given out only to those who have business that would carry them about the city. The remainder of the population was required to stay on their own land or in their own homes.

125 CITY BLOCKS DOWN.

Approximately 125 city blocks were destroyed, the greatest loss of life occurred in the State Theatre, a motion picture show, which collapsed, crushing many of the spectators.

Little attempt had been made to actually remove any of the conglomeration of trees, houses, wires and telegraph poles other than to chop pathways through them in order that some semblance of traffic might exist.

But the streets were not the only things in Lorain that were congested. All telegraph companies were swamped with messages addressed to Lorain people inquiring as to their safety. Most of these could not be delivered, principally because most of them were addressed to homes that had been wrecked and whose occupants had moved elsewhere.

FRANCE RECALLED.

If the devastation of the city and the tight military laws were not enough to remind one of days in France, another favorite scene "over there" was enacted when the Salvation Army and Red Cross established numerous canteens and served coffee and doughnuts, not only to the soldiers but to all of those who were hungry, and there were many of them.

Food became somewhat scarce today and prices in some of the cafes advanced sharply, although as a general rule the restaurants kept to their old prices and sold out early.

Governor Donahey, who arrived yesterday, will return to Columbus today and issue an appeal to the people of Ohio to come to the assistance of Lorain.

GOVERNOR ASKS AID.

"The devastation is almost complete and conditions are deplorable," said Governor Donahey. "Seldom have people been cut as suddenly from the conveniences of modern science and invention. The city is still without light, power or facilities for cooking, other than oil stoves and coal. Military chiefs announced today that gas might possibly be turned on in some sections tomorrow.

As soon as the severity of the storm was realized, Mayor George Hoffman deputized 2,000 citizens, many of them former service men, to do relief work. They worked throughout Saturday night, and when day broke thousands more joined in the rescue work. The National Tube Company sent 900 of their employes into the devastated business district with trucks and tractors to aid in clearing the streets. The Great Lakes Towing Company placed its entire fleet and employes at the service of the city.

POLICE FROM CLEVELAND.

The city of Cleveland sent about 150 policemen, 40 of whom came by motor trucks as soon as word of the storm reached the outside. Cleveland also sent its street cleaning superintendent with sixty men to help clean the debris.

Tears came to the eyes of the Mayor when he spoke of the aid Cleveland was giving his stricken city, for, in addition, firemen, doctors, nurses, food and clothing were sent.

"Cleveland's work has been wonderful," he said, "and we will never forget."

The storm left the usual number of crooks.

Miss May Hurst, piano player at the State Theatre, where many were killed, escaped from the wrecked building unscratched, although the roof and walls crumpled over her. The steel booth in which James Brandon, projectionist, was working, fell with its balcony perch to the basement, but Brandon was unhurt.

WOMAN ESCAPES.

Mrs. George Forester was standing on top of the three-story Flatiron building when it caved in. She rode the building to the ground and escaped with only a slight bruise.

Although the front of an apartment building on Broadway was shaven off coal, furniture in a front room on the second floor was undisturbed. Several persons sat in it watching wrecking operations.

About 1,000 feet south of the municipal bathing beach a canoe was wrapped around a telephone pole.

of a young and pretty girl by a middle-aged widower, bringing to his suit the fervor and persistency of a much younger man.

Miss Golding's soprano voice and her fair type of beauty, which to Mr. Luce recalled memories of his courtship of his first wife, who was also a singer, struck the keynote of love in his heart.

With the name Alice, which was also that of the first Mrs. Luce, who died three years ago, Miss Golding's resemblance to the other woman was complete.

Mr. Luce attended mass at his sweetheart's church in order to hear her sing. Soon afterward Alice accepted his proposal of marriage.

Although her family tried many times to dissuade her, she constantly told them she would choose Mr. Luce from all the world—and for love, not for the wealth she would enjoy.

MARRIAGE WAS OPPOSED.

"I opposed the marriage, but, nevertheless, I must say that Mr. Luce is a wonderful man, young for his years, a true gentleman and one who can be trusted with my daughter's love," said Mrs. Golding today.

"Alice has been a girl of extremely simple tastes and never one who would be expected to desire luxuries."

PROVED ARDENT WOOER.

For several years the bride-to-be had been soloist at the Church of the Sacred Heart in Newton Centre. Her associates in the choir gave her a reception last night after the vesper service.

They will be married by the Rev. Father Timothy J. Curtin, pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart, immediately after the marriage they will start on a honeymoon which will be spent mainly in motoring through the South and West.

When they return the bride will be installed as mistress of the home of her sister's employer at No. 171 Cypress street, Brookline.

ful and felonious" payment of $100,000 to take an unlawful action.

BRIBERY IS CHARGED.

Secretary Fall, it was testified before the oil committee, was loaned $100,000 by Doheny and the money was delivered in a satchel by Doheny Jr. Later Doheny obtained the lease to the Elk Hills reserve in California. Sinclair obtained the Teapot Dome, Wyoming, reserve without competitive bidding.

The indictments served to start the government's criminal cases in the oil imbroglio. Civil suits already have begun by Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts, special counsel appointed to conduct the prosecutions.

In considering the indictments, the Grand Jury had before it nearly all of those who testified during the times that sensations were being staged daily before the Senate committee.

In addition, much of the evidence made available by the committee was at the call of the Grand Jurors.

LAW DISREGARDED.

The committee, in the majority report prepared by Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, found that the law had been "flagrantly" disregarded in the negotiations of the Sinclair and Doheny leases and that President Harding's action issuing an executive order transferring the Naval reserves to the Interior Department was illegal. Secretary Fall's secret negotiations of the leases was described as in disregard of the statutes.

SOLDIER HELD ON HOLDUP CHARGE

Charged with the hold-up and robbery of Edward L. Mathews, an insurance collector, in South Boston, November 19, 1923, Private John T. Rigney, 13th Infantry, U. S. A., was held for the Suffolk Grand Jury when arraigned in South Boston court today. Police allege that Rigney, with a companion, laid in wait for Mathews in a K street hallway, placed a gun at his head and assaulted him after relieving him of $50 in cash and a check for $258.

Mathews fell unconscious on the street when he attempted to follow.

that Burroughs had some of them. Late the same day, Burroughs says, he was overpowered and forced back into the automobile and driven to a lonely shack on a wooded road in Plaistow.

"They began to talk about religion, when we were in the shack," says the teller of this tale of twentieth century torture. "They twitted me with the fact that I had left the Protestant faith and advised me to return to the church of my fathers.

"But, most of all, they demanded that I quit the Knights of Columbus. I refused, and an iron was brought forth and heated white.

BRANDED WITH IRON.

"At first they tried to brand me on the forehead, but I struggled so much that they desisted. One of them suggested that if I was left to think it over maybe I would weaken. A day or two ago they brought out the iron again and this time they went through with it. I was branded on both sides of my chest with the letter "K". The third "K" they never burned in. Maybe some of them were moved by a little human pity.

"The sensation of being branded is one I shall not forget this side of the grave. I could see the iron, first red, then white, as it cooled. I could feel the awful pain and see the little puff of smoke and hear the little sizzling sound as iron met flesh. It lasted only a minute, but I fainted."

After the branding, the guards relaxed their vigilance, according to Burroughs, and early Sunday morning he escaped. Although weak from hunger and torture, he managed to puzzle out his whereabouts and struggle on to Haverhill, just across the State line.

ESCAPES, COLLAPSES.

He collapsed as soon as he reached the Murphy home here. Later Thomas Dolan, a prominent member of the Knights of Columbus of Lawrence, was informed and interviewed the victim.

Mrs. Burroughs joined her husband here yesterday. She had not heard from him nor of him since June 11.

B. E. Blake, who was active in the search for Burroughs, reported that he received a letter signed "K. K. K." and postmarked in Lowell. It read "Burroughs, Bradford and you." A line was drawn through the name of Burroughs, evidently with the intention of indicating that he had been accounted for.

WORE HOODS.

The men who tortured him wore hoods, although those who accosted him on the road in Rochester did not, according to the story Burroughs told today.

He said he had no hope that he could identify them, as suffering had half crazed him while he was a captive.

The police of Lawrence and Rochester, as well as private detectives, are investigating the story of the past grand master of the K. of C.

FAMILY OF FIVE SLAIN BY FIEND IN CHICAGO

Battered Bodies of Couple and Three Children Then Covered by Blankets

Chicago, June 30.—Beaten to death and their bodies carefully covered by sheets or blankets Otto Eder, taxicab chauffeur; his wife, Frances, and their three sons, Roy, eleven years old; Harvey, six, and Jack, three, were found in their home.

There was no disorder in the house, and no attempt at robbery was apparent. The police said they thought the family had been killed by a half-crazed relative or a boarder filled with a lust to slay.

"It looks to me like the work of a man simply filled with a lust to kill," said Henry A. Wolf, chief of police of Elmhurst, the suburb in which the Eders lived.

The body of Eder and the two youngest boys were found in a bed room, their heads smashed. Mrs. Eder, who was about to become a mother lay in the dining room, and the body of the oldest boy had been tossed into a half filled bath tub. The tub then had been covered with a blanket.

Two neighbors who investigated after they became alarmed by protracted silence in the Eder home, said they had heard the relative of the Eders who is sought by the police call the eldest boy late yesterday afternoon.

Peter Selvagne of No. 4 Revere street, Revere, driver, was seriously injured.

LEOPOLD IS "MORAL MONSTROSITY," PRISON ALIENIST ASSERTS

CALLS LOEB ONLY TOOL OF PAL

Feared Chum and May Deserve Leniency in Franks Case, Says Writer

By PERRY M. LICHTENSTEIN, M. D., LL. B.
Physician, Tombs Prison, Alienist and Extensive Writer on Criminology.

New York, June 30 (I.N.S.)—It is often difficult to distinguish between badness and madness, particularly when moral defectiveness is being considered. A moral defective is not legally insane, unless such defect is part of a true insane condition or associated with imbecility or idiocy so as to render the subject incapable of sound judgment and reasoning.

Such is not the case as concerns Leopold and Loeb. Both are above the average in intelligence, and the former appears to be unusually clever. He is, however, a moral montrosity.

Facts in the case lead me to believe that Leopold was the stronger, dominating mind, and that Loeb was but a tool who feared and worshipped Leopold and was willing to do anything that was requested of him. From my experience in observing moral defectives I believe Loeb ships Leopold as a hero.

AL ASSOCIATES.

What about the theory that home environment is the most potential cause in the production of criminals? Here are two boys who had everything their hearts desired. Their parents are respectable people. The boys were given a liberal education. Everything was done to make them useful citizens, and yet, with what results? To what are we to attribute their acts? In order to derive the benefits of an education and to become a useful citizen it is necessary for the moral sense to be inborn.

If the moral sense is not inborn the child will not be a moral citizen. Immorality may, however, be the result of evil associations, and it is my opinion that this is true of Loeb.

CITES WAITE CASE.

It is strange that so much of moral defectiveness is found among the educated. For brutality and utter disregard for humanity and moral principles there is no better comparison to the Franks case than is the case of Dr. Arthur Warren Waite, who killed both his mother-in-law and father-in-law and had planned to kill his wife when he was apprehended.

Waite planned for months to slay his victims so as to get their money. He, in fact, married the daughter with the object in view of gaining control over her parents' wealth after their death, when all the money would become hers. Leopold and Loeb planned for months to kill some child. They planned every detail, even to the hiring of a car, writing letters, etc.

Waite was an educated man, a dentist. He was pleasing in disposition and a favorite in his home town. Both Leopold and Loeb have pleasing personalities, and were well liked. Waite took real pleasure in telling of the various steps in the murder.

MANY APPLY FOR 'HIGHLY PAID' JOBS

Washington, June 30.—The Prohibition Unit recently advertised that it had a few vacancies on its staff of law enforcement agents. Scattering applications were received, but from one section of South Carolina they poured in by the hundreds.

It was a puzzling circumstance until it was discovered that the newspaper there which carried the "ad" had stated in it that the pay scale was from $22,000 to $24,000 per year. This was one cipher too many.

HAPPY LITTLE GUESTS OF BROOKLINE ELKS

'TWAS BIG DAY FOR THESE YOUNGSTERS AT NORUMBEGA

Brookline lodge of Elks played host today to 1,800 little ones at the popular park where games, sports, ice cream and everything was enjoyed. The merry crowd made the trip in special cars. The crippled and sickly little folk who couldn't go by car were transported to the scene in a fleet of autos. All agreed it was the biggest day in their budding young lives.

BIG WELCOME AWAITS ELKS IN BOSTON

The mystic high sign and grip will be in order in Boston during the week of July 7 when thousands of members of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks from all parts of the country will flock here to attend the Elks' National Convention.

With the co-operation of city and state officials, army and navy authorities, and other agencies, the committee in charge have completed plans for the most elaborate, interesting and spectacular convention ever held since the order was founded.

The thousands of Elks and their families who will journey here from all over the continent to take part in the activities of the week may rest assured that they will be well repaid for trouble.

The biggest feature of the entertainment program which will make the convention of especial significance to entire New England will be the striking portrayals of Boston's historical events and traditions.

Of no less interest will be naval displays to be staged under the auspices of the Navy Department in various parts of the city.

The city will be dazzlingly illuminated at night.

The corps of able speakers that has been formed to hold forth during the convention have been unsurpassed as far as oratory is concerned in the history of Elkdom.

Music of the finest quality that has been arranged for this week will lend variety to the business and entertainment sessions.

The big attraction at the opening session in Mechanics Hall on the evening of July 7 will be the widely famed chorus of the Columbus, O., Lodge 37. This group of twenty-four artists will be supported by The Boston Elks Festival chorus of 500 voices, and the Boston Elks orchestra of 50 musicians.

The Boston Elks and orchestra will open the convention program. The orchestra, under the leadership of John W. Crowley, will play "Mignon," after which the great chorus of 500, under the direction of George Shriver Dunham, will sing "Unfold Ye Portals." Other selections will follow.

The leaders of the chorus organization are George H. Johnson of Boston and Mrs. William Arms Fisher. Daniel J. Kane, exalted ruler, is chairman of the opening exercises committee.

Special precautions are to be taken by the Elks committees and the police to guard against the thefts of automobiles of those who arrive here to attend the sessions of the convention.

PRIZES OFFERED.

Elks from every city will compete for prizes in contests of every description at convention. Prizes will be awarded for drills, band concerts, floats parade, best decorated building, best dressed window.

1,800 CHILDREN ARE GUESTS ON ELKS' OUTING

Young Brookline transferred itself today from the native town, out to the allurements of Norumbega Park. Today was the annual "Kiddies Day," sponsored by the Brookline Lodge of Elks, for the sole purpose of giving Brookline's children one roaring good time.

At 9 o'clock, 1,800 children piled into trolley cars at Town Hall, Brookline, in a hedlam and were transported to the park beside the Charles River. For a score or more of crippled children, unable to weather the happy crowding of their more fortunate brothers and sisters, automobiles were provided.

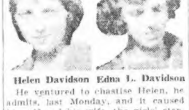
Games and sports of all kinds were held under direction of Charles F. Cameron, director of the Brookline gymnasium and baths.

All park concessions were taken over for the day by the Elks and the children given full opportunity to enjoy them. At noon a luncheon was served. The start home was made at 5 o'clock.

Arthur J. Caulfield was chairman of the committee in charge. Mrs. James Driscoll was chairman of the women's committee.

GIRL WHIPPED, SISTER GOES ON "STRIKE"

In the future James H. Davis, son of No. 57 Elm street, West Somerville, will think twice before attempting a whipping to either of his two daughters, Edna L., seventeen years old, and Helen M., seventeen.



Helen Davidson Edna L. Davidson

He ventured to chastise Helen, he admits, last Monday, and it caused himself and his wife, the girls' stepmother, untold worry and trouble.

Helen left home in a huff. Her sister, walked out on a sympathy strike after her.

A state-wide search for the girls that followed ended at Lake Walden, Concord, where Patrolman Callahan of the State Constabulary took the girls into custody after recognizing them from descriptions.

RECLUSE QUIET AS HOUSE IS ATTACKED

Somerville Eccentric Fails to Show Fight When Work of Moving Is Started

While amazed spectators watched with bated breath today a score of workmen attacked the foundations of the old house in Somerville, occupied by Frank Anton Funcke, Harvard graduate and eccentric recluse—and nothing happened.

With chilly thrills chasing themselves up and down their spines, the growing crowd across from No. 298 Beacon street, watched the workers bore great holes in the brick—and nothing happened.

OUT OF SIGHT.

The recluse who, only slightly more than three weeks ago, drove off a similar attack on his home with the threat of an axe and a rifle, did not even appear at a window today when the workmen, sent by Israel Waldman, purchaser of the property, began the work of moving the building, have a century old.

Patrolman Louis Belzarini of the Somerville police approached—and something did happen, at last. But it was not through Ite old Harvard man, who still kept his own counsel inside the locked and boarded house.

The policeman discovered that the building movers had no permit. In view of this he ordered the work stopped. A few minutes later, however, James F. Robertson of Revere, contractor in charge of the job, drove up and displayed a permit. Then the work was resumed—still without protest, armed or unarmed, from Funcke.

Armed Resistance.

Three weeks ago Waldmann bought the Funcke family mansion now occupied alone by the recluse with the intention of turning the building to face Rustin street and erecting stores on the Beacon street front.

When he visited the property, however, Funcke, with a rifle and double-barrel forester's axe, drove him off and kept him off, until Waldmann temporarily abandoned his attempt to take possession.

FIND MAN'S CLOTHING; MAY MEAN DROWNING

Uncertain whether they have a drowning tragedy or a hot weather comedy on their hands, the police of East Boston today are seeking the owner of a pile of masculine clothing found on Frankfort street in that section today. There was a coat, a straw hat, a necktie, a white shirt, black shoes and socks, yes! Those who think the clothing indicates a drowning point out that the inner harbor in Wood Island park is only 300 yards away. Those in doubt find that point out that the pile of clothing did not include a pair of trousers, which all well dressed men are wearing.

TWINS' SIMILARITY PROVES LIFELONG

Long Beach, Cal., June 30.—Mrs. Elizabeth Hogan and Mrs. Margaret Ingle of this city, twins, grew up together, with the same likes and dislikes, they married at the same time and the other day were taken ill at the same time. The same doctor treated each and recommended operations. Both women went under the knife of the same surgeon within an hour. Now the twins are together in the convalescent ward, where they amaze the other patients by telling of the similarity of symptoms that led to the operations.

PROF. GODDARD AND WORCESTER GIRL MARRY

Clark University Teacher Weds Miss Esther Kirk, and Surprises Friends

Professor Robert Hutchings Goddard of Clark University, whose ambition once was to send a rocket to the moon, and Miss Esther Christina Kirk, Worcester society girl, were married quietly in St. John's Episcopal Church in Worcester, without taking their many friends into their confidence. They are spending their honeymoon in the Whole Mountains.

Prof. Goddard.

Friends of the pair did not learn of the romance until they were well out of the case. They were married unattended.

When Professor Goddard made many experiments in physics, most of which centred about the use of rockets, he invented a rocket during the war which he said would take photographs miles in the air and far from the projector. Later he announced his determination to send a rocket to the moon.

WOMAN'S BODY IS FOUND IN RESERVOIR

Two Days Previously Had Told Policeman She Was Widow and Penniless

Two days after an unidentified woman, representing herself to be a penniless widow, told a policeman and a watchman at the Chestnut Hill Reservoir of her misfortunes, her body was recovered from the waters of the reservoir off Beacon street.

When Patrolman Patrick Preeley of the Brighton Station, passing the reservoir, near Beacon street, saw a woman's overcoat, hat, umbrella, pocketbook and twelve feet of clothesline on the bank, he notified his superiors.

The latter in turn notified the Metropolitan Park police and Sergeant Dominic O'Connor and Patrolman John J. O'Hearn, after dragging for a short time, recovered the body. Medical Examiner Magrath ordered it removed to the Northern Mortuary.

Police expressed the belief that she was a suicide.

Watchman Al White of the pumping station told the police that he saw that woman Friday reclining on the bank near where her clothes were later found. At his approach, he said, she arose and told him her story.

She said her name was Hilda Swangren, that she was thirty-seven years old and a widow. She said she had formerly lived in New York, but now had no home and was penniless. She added that she was resting before leaving for a place on Hammond street, Newton, where she expected to find employment.

Watchman White walked with her until they met Motorcycle Officer Caples. She repeated her story to the officer and both gave her a sum of money.

The only promising clew to the dead woman's identity is a wedding ring found on her finger which bore the initials "C. O. H. to O. E. B." and the date, "June 19, 1903."

The dead woman is described as about five feet, six inches tall, weighing 130 pounds, having brown hair and blue eyes.

Gay Plans for "Fourth" Made by Smart Set Along North Shore, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN

THIS week has one outstanding day on its social calendar—July 4th. Every hostess and every club is planning some sort of jubilee. Nearly all the town houses are closed already and the few remaining will be boarded and barred by the holiday. No resort seems without its particular celebration. Newport is holding its famous "Bake." There will be the annual meeting of the Clambake Club. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, who is now in Europe, will be re-elected president.

And speaking of Newport, the season is far ahead of any that year. The registrants at the Casino number as many now as they did in the second week of July last year. The same corresponding increase is true of the Country Club and every bath house on Bailey's Beach has been taken for the season.

Bar Harbor, Beverly and the North Shore places have gay plans for the "Fourth." Then the 5th of July ushers in another notable society event. Miss Joan Whitney daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, is to marry Charles Shipman Payson of Portland, Maine. Miss Joan Whitney is to have Mrs. Henry and Mrs. James W. Wadsworth, Jr., as matrons of honor.

LONDON sends word of interest to Bostonians. At the last court of the season Mrs. Christopher LaFarge (Louisa Hoar) was presented to the King and Queen. And two other famous beauties made their curtsy with her, Mrs. Reginald C. Foster (Frances Hoar) and Miss Frances Lindon Smith, daughter of the artist, Joseph Lindon Smith.

Jay, United States Ambassador to Rumania, and Mrs. Jay and their two daughters, are expected to be at Dark Harbor for most of the Summer. The Charles Dana Gibsons arrived early this season at their place on "Seven Hundred Acre Island" where Mr. Gibson has a studio.

MISS BETTY CONVERSE, debutante daughter of the gifted Derwitt S. Converses, has brought a new honor to the already greatly distinguished group. She has won the "Honorers Prize" from the Museum of Fine Arts, where she studied at last year, even though it was her "first season."

HOMES FOR 7830 FAMILIES BUILT IN STATE

Total Valuation of $34,500,708 for the First Five Months of Year

New residential buildings, for the accommodation of 7,830 families, with a total valuation of $34,500,708, were erected in Massachusetts during the first five months of the present year.

These figures, made public today by the state department of labor and industries, are based on building permits filed in thirty-seven cities.

The total estimated value of buildings of all descriptions for the erection of which permits were requested in these same cities during the five months was $69,395,775, an increase of 13.1 per cent. when compared with the corresponding value of $60,270,225 for the first five months of 1923.

During the month of May, the aggregate value of building permits was greater by $750,000 than the value of the permits issued during April. Large increases were noted in Chicopee, Haverhill, Malden, New Bedford, Pittsfield and Quincy.

While the total value of permits fell off sharply in Boston in May, the prospective residential building was large, 118 dwellings being planned at a cost of $1,396,875.

GEN. AND MRS. DAWES OFF TO SEE COOLIDGE

Chicago, June 30.—Brigadier-General Charles Gates Dawes, Republican Vice-Presidential nominee, and Mrs. Dawes left for Washington today to visit President and Mrs. Coolidge. "Several days" was the most definite information obtainable as to the probable duration of the visit. General Dawes will devote much of his time to conferences with President Coolidge. It is understood he has arranged private matters so that he can indulge every moment from now until November in promoting his party's interests.

FOR THE Summer Dip

FOR the invigorating ocean swim or the cool plunge in some inland lake you need towels of good size, soft, absorbent; fairly heavy in weight, but not too bulky to carry a lot of them around in your car or pack in your camping outfit. Just big and thick enough to dry a person comfortably, but not too large to wash out easily and dry quickly on the bushes in the sun.

Not too expensive either—for the ups and downs of camp life, or motoring; yet nice enough for company in the summer cottage by the sea. Exactly right for all these things are the colored bordered or plain white Turkish towels at 45 and 59 cents. Order six by telephone if you are in a hurry or it is too warm to shop; or come in and see the good values for yourself.

Broken Lots of Fine Quality

All kinds of Turkish towels here, mostly Martex and other finely colored, soft, luxurious ones usually costing from $1.25 to $2.00, but now being cleared out at from 89 cents to $1.50. A few of these are slightly soiled; some are quite fresh. Some have colored flowered borders in rose or lavender; some have fancy crosswise or lengthwise stripes in various colors. A splendid chance to pick out a few pretty, luxurious towels, each 50 or 60 cents under price. Also a few plain white navy towels usually selling for $1 deserve special mention at 79 cents each.

BOY SHOOTS CHUM AND CALLS POLICE

Benjamin Files, fourteen years old, of No. 376 Pleasant street, South Weymouth, shot and killed his chum and schoolmate, Talbot J. Liley, fourteen, of Main street, South Weymouth, with a shotgun and then turned to a telephone and calmly informed the police of the incident.

"I've just killed my chum. I didn't knew it was loaded," he said.

Later, after the arrival of the police, when the full portent of the matter dawned upon him, the boy was visibly affected by what had occurred.

Sergeant Edward F. Butler of the Weymouth police is investigating the shooting. Medical Examiner Dr. Frazier viewed the body, but declined to comment on the matter. No action has yet been taken by the authorities.

ANDREWS, OLD-TIME ACTOR, DROPS DEAD

Rochester, N. Y., June 30.—Harry Andrews, 51 years old, stage director for the Vaughn Glazer players, fell dead of heart disease while directing a rehearsal of the stock company here. He began his stage career with a tour in "The Count of Monte Cristo," with James O'Neil. He later was associated with Rose Stahl and Eleanor Robson.

SCORE HURT IN RIOT OF GIRL PRISONERS

Milwaukee, June 30.—One girl was severely injured, a score or more scratched, bruised and pummeled and seven others arrested when eighty girls at the House of the Good Shepherd, an institution for delinquents, rioted and wrecked a classroom. The riot ended the annual picnic held in the institution grounds and was preceded by the escape of four inmates.

BONUS BUREAU AIDS CROWDS WITH BLANKS

By SOLDIERS' FRIEND.

Service men by the hundreds, together with widows and relatives of veterans who died in service or since the Armistice, are being cared for daily at the American-Advertiser Soldiers' Friend Bureau.

The Bonus Application headquarters is located on the street floor of the American building, No. 80 Summer street, and the assistance furnished is absolutely free.

J. L. G., WOBURN.

Q.—I enlisted in the U. S. Army April 12, 1917, and received an honorable discharge on August 25, 1917, for physical disability. Am I entitled to the bonus?

A.—Yes. If no part of your service was overseas you will be entitled to a bonus credit of $1 per day after the first 60 days of home service.

E. E. F., THREE RIVERS, Canada.

Q.—I served in the U. S. Army from July 14, 1918, to February 28, 1919, and am now living in Canada. Am I entitled to the adjusted compensation?

A.—If you received an honorable discharge you will be entitled to make application for the bonus. An official blank will be mailed to you in a few days.

C. M., PROVIDENCE.

Q.—I enlisted on June 7, 1917, and was honorably discharged in January, 1918, because I was under age. Am I entitled to the bonus?

A.—Whether or not you will be eligible to the bonus under the circumstances is a question which will be determined by the bonus officials after you have filed an application. There is nothing in the bonus law which prohibits you from making application.

L. S. D., LOWELL.

Q.—I enlisted on October 4, 1917, sailed for France April 5, 1918, returned to the United States on May 9, 1918, and was discharged on May 26, 1919. About how much will my insurance certificate amount to? I am now 27 years of age. Will it be necessary to have finger prints taken?

A.—After deducting the first sixty days of home service you will undoubtedly be entitled to receive the maximum credit of $625, which, at your age when adjusted into a 20-year paid-up policy, will amount to about $1,560.

(2) The official bonus blank contains a space for the veteran's finger prints of his right hand, and must be placed there.

J. B. M., LAWRENCE.

Q.—I served in the navy from 1916 until September 1, 1919, and received an honorable discharge. Thereafter I re-enlisted and received a dishonorable discharge. Am I entitled to the bonus?

A.—The bonus law provides that the word "veteran" includes any individual who served in the World War, but does not include any individual who at any time during such period or thereafter was separated from the service under other than honorable conditions. Whether or not you will be eligible to receive the bonus is a question to be determined by the bonus officials in Washington after you have filed your application.

P. E. S., PORTLAND, ME.

Q.—I served in the navy from October 25, 1918, to February 15, 1919, and received an honorable discharge. How much will my bonus amount to and will it be paid to me in cash?

A.—If no part of your service was overseas you will be entitled to a credit of $1 per day for the 114 days of service, after deducting the first 60 days, which will give you a credit of $54. If your credit was 50 or less, it would be paid to you in cash beginning about March 1, 1925. Your credit being more than $50, the amount will be turned into a 20 year paid-up endowment policy, with a face value of about $135.

Q.—I am a widow of a World War veteran and was dependent upon him for support at the time of his death. Will the bonus be paid to me in cash or in the form of a policy? Where can I obtain an application blank in Providence?

A.—In the case of a dependent widow the bonus will be paid to her in 20 equal quarterly installments, beginning about March 1, 1925. Application blanks may be obtained in Providence at any postoffice, American Legion Post, or Red Cross branch. If you cannot obtain one write to us again.

CROOKS BLIND BAKER, LOOT REGISTER

Adolphe Melle, who owns and operates a bakery at No. 331 Chelsea street, East Boston, has decided it is wise to keep his eyes open, particularly when another man is offering him a drink. His temporary blindness cost him $33.

Shortly after Melle opened his shop today, two local characters, whom he knows only by sight, entered and asked him to change a one-dollar bill. Melle declined, saying he preferred to keep the change for his customers.

One of the pair tried to argue with him about it, and finally offered him a swig from a pint bottle he was carrying, in an effort to make Melle loosen up.

Meanwhile, the other lifted the cash register and took it out into the backyard, where the other joined him in rifling the contents of the till.

Melle did not miss the register until a short time later, when he went to make change for a customer. Later it was found placed in one of the bakeshop's ovens.

Police are looking for the pair.

GERMANS REPLY ON SECRET ARMAMENT

Berlin, June 30 (A.P.)—Germany's reply to the allied note on the resumption of military control of Germany's armament declares that the German people reject even the mere idea of war. All shades of opinion are unanimous in repudiating secret arming as impossible, useless and dangerous, it asserts.

The German government, the note adds, has proceeded in a thorough manner for the disarmament of certain political organizations, and there is no longer any question that they are armed to any serious extent. The reply was submitted to France today.

HEARST PAPERS AID MOTHER IN HUNT FOR SON

Dighton Woman Speeds West on Track of Boy Missing Five Years

The aid of two Hearst newspapers was given today to Mrs. Clara C. Smith of Dighton in her five-year search for her son, Russell Everett Smith, who disappeared in 1919 while playing with a kitten in his front dooryard.

Little Russell was four years old when he vanished. Today he would be nine years and four months old. For five weary years the mother, never giving up hope, has scoured the country for him, secure in the belief that some day he will be found.

Hundreds of clues have been followed up. Thousands of letters have been mailed from the Smith farmhouse in Dighton. Countless railroad trips have been made by Mrs. Smith. But always the trail has trickled out finally into nothing.

SPEEDS TO CHICAGO.

Today, armed with an identifying letter from the Boston American, Mrs. Smith sped westward to Chicago where representatives of the Chicago American awaited her coming, ready to aid in a new hunt.

The mother believes that her long-missing son is a nine-year-old boy picked up a year ago on the streets of Chicago in a dazed and speechless condition.

For months the waif was under treatment by specialists, until finally his speech was restored. He said his name was Arthur Tyne and that he had been brought to Chicago on a train at night by a woman. He had lived, he said, in New York, St. Louis and Taunton, which is the nearest city to Dighton.

AGE THE SAME.

The age of the Cicago waif is the same as that of little Russell Smith, if he is still living. The Chicago boy bears a scar identical with one on Russell's body. The description of the "Tyne" boy as to features and coloring is that of Russell Smith.

Mrs. Smith is confident that the Chicago waif, now in care of the Illinois Home and Aid Society, Chicago, is her long lost son. A photograph was sent to the Taunton police from Chicago and was shown to her. She declares there is a marked resemblance.

Seeks Lost Boy

MRS. CLARA C. SMITH

With the aid of two Hearst papers the saddened mother, a resident of Dighton, starts for Chicago to see if a waif picked up there is her son who disappeared in 1919 while playing with a kitten in his front yard. His description answers to what the lost boy would look like today, she thinks.

HOLD ROXBURY MAN FOR TAXI ROBBERY

Harry P. Morley, of No. 262 Eustis street, Roxbury, pleaded not guilty today in Roxbury Court to a charge of stealing $27 from George Fanning of Fourth street, South Boston. According to the police, Morley loosed Fanning out of a taxicab in which they both were riding, and into an alley, where the theft occurred. Then Morley resumed his taxi journey alone. But the chauffeur later reported the incident to the police. He was held in $5,000 until next Monday.

FIVE KILLED IN ILLINOIS CRASH

New York, June 30.—W. C. McNair, president of the Michigan College of Mines, of Houghton, Mich., three women passengers and a fireman were killed today when a fast mail train No. 8 from Omaha ran into the rear end of an eastbound Denver passenger train on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad near Buda, Ill., early today.

FOUR ARRESTED IN RAID ON RUM RUNNERS

Lynn Police Seize Two Touring Cars and Cargo of Liquor Landed Near Pines

Lynn police surprised a party of bootleggers as they took over a cargo of illicit liquor at the aviation field on the Lynnway, early today, arresting four men and seizing two high-priced touring cars.

One car made its escape and the occupants of this machine immediately got in touch with Lynn attorneys, who were on hand at police station when the four alleged rum-runners arrived there.

Late Sunday afternoon the Lynn police received a tip that a large cargo of booze was to be unloaded near the Pine river bridge. Officers secreted themselves and shortly after midnight a big motor boat put in to the shore and started unloading a cargo of liquor.

There were three big touring cars receiving the cases and kegs as they were unloaded when the police surrounded the place.

The driver of one machine stepped on the gas and disappeared in the dark. The other two machines were surrounded and the drivers gave themselves up. The men in the cars gave their names as Albert H. Harrison, No. 21 Milton street, Dedham; Arthur R. Abbott, No. 604 Prospect street, Methuen; Charles B. Fortner, No. 1148 Commonwealth avenue, Allston, and George L. Lowell, No. 16 Norris street, Lawrence.

Their bail was fixed at $500 each and this was readily furnished.

Four hundred cases of Scotch whiskey and six kegs of liquor were seized in the automobiles and along the roadway where it was stored prior to being carried away.

Make Fourth Safe And Sane By Simple Don'ts

If you want to celebrate the Fourth of July in a safe and sane manner, follow out this advice from the National Safety Council:

Don't let children light matches. Don't throw away a lighted match. Don't discharge firearms. Don't build a bonfire for fun. Don't allow children to hold a "sparkler." Don't burn gunpowder. Don't hang on to a lighted cracker.

TWO AMERICANS MURDERED IN CHINA

Rev. George D. Byers, Presbyterian Missionary, and Edwin C. Hawley Meet Death

Peking, June 30 (A.P.)—Rev. George Douglas Byers, American Presbyterian missionary in the island of Hainan, was murdered June 24, presumably by bandits, according to word received by the American consulate at Canton.

United States Vice-Consul Culver B. Chamberlain is sailing to investigate.

Peking, June 30 (A.P.)—An account of the slaying of Edwin C. Hawley, American employe of a British export firm, at Wanhsien, Szechwan Province, June 19, received here, confirms earlier reports that he met death at the hands of Chinese junk men.

The junk men resented Hawley's effort to move a cargo of wood oil by steamer and threatened death to anyone attempting it.

McADOO AND SMITH ARE DEADLOCKED ON FIRST FOUR BALLOTS

SOME OF THE POLITICAL BLOSSOMS STILL BLOOMING IN THE GARDEN AS SEEN BY HAL COFFMAN

BOTH SHOW SLIGHT GAINS, BUT FAVORITE SONS STILL HOLD

press the will of the people of the state and that money had been brought in for the McAdoo men.

It seemed obvious that the managers of the leading favorite son candidates were sitting tight, waiting for the expected deadlock between Smith and McAdoo to be unmistakably established.

On the third ballot the leaders stood this way:

McAdoo, 467; Smith, 255½.

That was a gain of six for McAdoo and a gain of four for Smith over the second ballot.

SWITCH TO HARRISON.

The second ballot showed little change from the first. All the native son dark horses stood solid through.

The only change of note was that Louisiana switched her twenty from Senator Harrison of Mississippi to Senator Robinson of Arkansas.

The relative positions of Smith and McAdoo were unchanged on the second ballot.

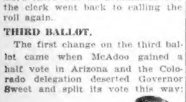
The totals for the second ballot were:

Underwood 42, McAdoo 431, Robinson 41, Sweet 12, Smith 255½, Brown 12½, Saulsbury 6, Cox 61, Silzer 20, Bryan 18, John W. Davis 52, Ritchie 21½, Harrison 23½, Jonathan Davis 2, Walsh 1, Glass 25, Thompson 1, Kendrick 6, Ralston 20 and Ferris 20.

The result was announced once more there was no nomination and the clerk went back to calling the roll again.

THIRD BALLOT.

The first change on the third ballot came when McAdoo gained a half vote in Arizona and the Colorado delegation deserted Governor Sweet and split its vote this way:



DARK HORSE GEORGE S. SILZER.

McAdoo, six, John W. Davis, three, one and a half for Governor Smith and one and a half for Underwood. The first native son was thereby eliminated.

While the third ballot was on, the Missouri row had brought a physical encounter outside of the hall.

Remarks by Joseph Shannon of Kansas City about money being passed to swing the Missouri delegation for McAdoo so angered Charles Hay of St. Louis, who delivered a seconding speech for McAdoo, that he went after Shannon.

"If you say that we got any money, you are a — liar and you know it," Hay said he told Shannon.

Then, according to Hay, Shannon hit him lightly on the shoulder.

LANDS ON JAW.

Eye witnesses, however, said that Shannon swung with his right and landed on Hay's jaw.

Several policemen who saw the trouble rushed in and separated the men. Shannon denied that he struck Hay.

In the Illinois grab-bag McAdoo gained a vote, and the others were divided about as before.

In Massachusetts McAdoo gained a vote and a half a vote, taking it away from Governor Smith.

Mississippi held fast to Harrison and Missouri's thirty-six, under the unit rule, went for McAdoo. This time there was no challenge.

SMITH GAINS TWO.

North Dakota gave eight to McAdoo and two to Smith. That was a loss of two for McAdoo and a gain of two for Smith.

Pennsylvania again divided her vote and did it this way: One for Cox, one for Thompson of Colorado, one for Robinson, one for Glass, one and a half for Ritchie, three and a half for Underwood, four for John W. Davis, twenty-five and a half for McAdoo, thirty-seven and a half for Smith.

That was a gain of two for Smith from the field. McAdoo had kept his.

UNDER UNIT RULE.

Missouri's thirty-six votes were recorded to McAdoo under the unit rule after a fight in which Joseph J. Shannon of Kansas City led a contest to relieve the delegation from its instructions under the unit rule.

"I decline to be bound by some gentlemen's agreement which has money back of it. We decline to be delivered even if we were sold."

The Missouri delegation hurled boos at Shannon as he concluded.

Frank H. Farris of Rolla, Mo., spoke for the McAdoo side of the argument. The question, Farris told the convention, was one wholly for the State of Missouri and had no place in a national convention.

"We are committed to vote as a unit under our instructions passed without a dissenting vote in our State convention," said Farris. He read the resolution of the State convention providing for it.

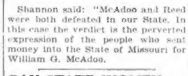
WALSH'S RULING.

The question, it developed, revolved about the delegates who had merely voted present and thus prevented a majority vote from being taken.

"It is the duty of the chairman," said Senator Walsh, "to decide the question on the instructions to the delegates without regard for extraneous matters which have gone in."

Chairman Walsh indicated he did not consider that the challenge could be sustained. Finally he ruled that the vote be recorded as a unit for McAdoo.

Announcement of the Missouri poll showed 25 for McAdoo, three for Davis and eight present and not voting. Chairman Walsh gave Delegate Shannon five minutes to state why the vote should not go to McAdoo under the unit rule.



Shannon said: "McAdoo and Reed were both defeated in our State. In this case the verdict is the perverted expression of the people who sent money into the State of Missouri for William G. McAdoo.

BAY STATE WOMEN DELEGATES ROBBED

New York, June 30.—Mrs. Helen A. McDonald and Miss Mary Meehan, both delegates-at-large from Massachusetts, were victimized by thieves. Mrs. McDonald lost two diamond rings of a total value of $2,000 and a breast pin as an heirloom. Miss Meehan lost her pocketbook containing a considerable sum of money, her ticket and badge of admission to the convention hall. The articles were taken from the room at the Hotel Belmont occupied by Mrs. McDonald and Miss Meehan.

Today's Program for Democratic Convention

New York, June 30.—Following is the program for the seventh session of the Democratic convention, beginning at 9:30 today:

Call to order by Chairman Walsh.

Invocation by the Rev. Gustav Arnold Carstensen, Protestant Episcopal, New York city.

Roll call by States for ballot on nomination for President.

Adjournment.

M'ADOO WILL SHOOT ALL HE HAS TODAY

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.

New York, June 30 (I.N.S.)—Two "battalions of death" one commanded by William G. McAdoo and the other by Governor Al Smith, marched to Madison Square Garden today, dug in, and began the long siege of battle and ballot, out of which will emerge the Democratic standard bearer for 1924.

Flanking them on all sides were the sharpshooters of a dozen other candidates—John W. Davis and Samuel M. Ralston particularly—keen-eyed and watchfully waiting for the first signs of the break.

The McAdoo strategy is to try for a decision today. His managers, while outwardly confident "on" onty of their strength, but also of the ultimate triumph of their cause, are nevertheless nervously apprehensive of a long engagement.

The McAdoo tactics call for an alignment of forces, a feeling out process for the first three ballots and then they plan to shoot with everything they have from the fourth on, showing a rising crescendo of strength on each ballot until the tenth.

If they fail to nominate by the tenth—and the general opinion is that they will fail, then they are going to hang on grimly to all they can and hope for the best.

CLAIM STEADY GAIN.

McAdoo's managers claim today that the Californian will have approximately 400 votes within the first three ballots, the exact number depending upon the favorite-son showing. Five hundred by the fifth and that there be steady accessions of strength on each succeeding ballot toward the goal of 732, the two-thirds majority.

The factics of the Smith managers are not radically different from those of the McAdoo handlers. They plan to start easily, polling between 200 and 250 votes in the early ballots, and then show gradual accretions as long as possible.

One of the conferences continuing through Sunday produced a formidable movement in the direction of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, permanent chairman of the convention and the prosecutor of the famous oil scandal.

Walsh is advantageously situated. He is a Westerner, and is considered "progressive" but above all else he is a Catholic and stands well with both the McAdoo and Smith leaders.

HOLD WALSH IN RESERVE.

He is in favor with the McAdoo people because he consistently advocated the nomination of McAdoo during the primary fight; his religion makes him stand well with bitter Anti-Klan following in Massachusetts and New York.

It is not expected, however, that Walsh will be a factor in the early balloting. The conference that brought forth his candidacy, participated in by some of his Senatorial colleagues, also decided it would avail them little or nothing to bring him forth until the McAdoo-Smith deadlock has become an actuality. He will be held in reserve.

LA FOLLETTE TO DENOUNCE KU KLUX KLAN

By UNIVERSAL SERVICE.

Washington, June 30.—Senator [illegible] ... Fowler and his supporters are entirely dissatisfied with the platform adopted by the Democratic National Convention. Senator La Follette will rush his plans to head the Third Party.

He is busy putting the finishing touches to his declaration of policies and principles, to be submitted to the convention at Cleveland, July 4.

La Follette and his followers take the position that the Democratic platform straddles all important issues, and offers no solution of national questions such as agricultural relief, transportation, and the "inflation of the currency."

TO DENOUNCE KLAN.

That La Follette's platform will name the Klan and denounce it in strong language as un-American and un-Democratic is assured, say his supporters.

On that issue alone he will make a nation-wide appeal and will be certain of much support in practically every State in the Union, his followers believe.

Rumors from his camp are that the Senator will take the "damp" end of the issue question. To support that belief, his close friends point out that there is a pronounced sentiment in many sections of the country for a modification of the Volstead act so as to legalize to sale of beer and light wine.

Some of La Follette's followers candidly admit they feared the Democratic platform would incorporate such a plank, which would have hurt his proposed campaign, in that to sue they claim La Follette can carry a number of the conservative States, because of the support of large industrial groups who favor light wines and beer.

AGAINST LEAGUE.

Again La Follette will denounce in his platform any and all entangling alliances with Europe. He will assail both the League of Nations and the World Court, and thus offer a haven of refuge for the large irreconcilable groups throughout the nation.

His program will be one of "peace and prosperity." As to war, he will propose that before any such declaration is made by Congress, it shall be approved by a referendum of the people.

La Follette will also urge limitations of the powers of the Supreme Court. He will propose a plan whereby a law, which has been declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court may be placed on the statute books by a majority vote of the Congress, the adverse opinion of the Supreme Court notwithstanding.

La Follette followers say his program will call to his support "all persons who think," and will make a nation-wide appeal. They expect he will gain as much support from former Democrats as from Republicans.

Senator Wheeler Fears Party Won't Win Congress

By BURTON K. WHEELER, U. S. Senator from Montana.

New York, June 30 (Copyright, 1924, by I. N. S.).—The future of the Democratic Party is uncertain, the battle over the Klan issue has left its ill effects and the race for the nomination is in a chaotic state.

There are many leading Democrats who feel it was impossible for the warring factions to get together.

Unless peace can be restored, the party will go down to defeat in November, losing not only the presidency but the Senate and the House of Representatives, which it was generally conceded the Democrats would carry.

If Al Smith were nominated, after the bitter fight in the convention it would add greatly to the chances of a third party victory. If the third party did not win, it at least would run a close second to a Republican winner.

Brisbane Analyses Balloting Results at Convention

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

CONVENTION HALL, MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, June 30.—Half past ten. The convention will come to order. This is the beginning of real business. The balloting begins.

But the chance of fighting is about over. The performance will not interest the crowd so much.

The Rev. Gustave Carstenson of Holy Rood Protestant Episcopal Church prays for the convention.

This is the second Protestant Episcopalian invited to pray here. A Baptist, Presbyterian, Christian Scientist and Cardinal Hayes of the Roman Catholic Church have prayed, the Cardinal first.

No rabbi has been invited to pray as yet; presumably that will come. Rabbi Wise, one of the most eloquent preachers in America, sits among the delegates, taking the place of the late Charles F. Murphy, head of Tammany. Dr. Wise would offer a vigorous prayer, but it might be hard for him to keep politics, and especially the Klan, out of his prayer. In this case out of the heart the mouth speaketh.

The crowd joins in reciting "Our Father Who Art in Heaven."

Now you will soon get the first vote on presidential candidates. What sort of voting it will be, no one can guess, or what candidates, if any, the religious fight will kill off at the start.

Senator Walsh, who has resumed the short blue coat and white flannel trousers, announces the roll call of States. There will be cheering, of course, especially when the name of Smith or McAdoo come up in the voting. They still lead in the size of their following.

A man of Massachusetts wants to know whether the chair is aware of the fact that on Saturday a delegate voted on the Klan issue under intimidation is now ready to vote as his conscience dictates and wants to change his vote.

A few shouted "Put him out." His name is Lawrence F. Quigley, Franklin D. Roosevelt calls for the regular course of business.

Senator Walsh says any delegate that wants to change his vote must get up and do it, before the final vote is announced. Therefore the intimidated one is too late.

They are off. "Alabama casts 24 votes for Underwood." Not a cheer, not a murmur, which surprised many.

Arkansas casts eighteen votes for Senator Robinson. No applause there, either.

Now comes California, 26 votes for McAdoo, pretty good cheering and hand-clapping there. Nothing much, however.

Colorado gives 12 votes for Gov. Sweet of that State. This voting means merely "exercise galloping," for the candidates. The real race has not yet started. Connecticut gives 8 votes for Gov. Brown of New Hampshire, six for Gov. Smith of New York. Some cheers, not quite as much as for McAdoo. Both leading names have been mentioned. Unless there is some upset in the preliminary line-up, this will be calm.

Florida casts 12 votes for McAdoo, including W. J. Bryan's vote. And Georgia and Idaho are solidly for McAdoo. Illinois divides up, some for Silzer of New Jersey, some for John W. Davis. They are both applauded. McAdoo gets 12 Illinois votes. It goes, Al Smith 15, Cox 10, Silzer 10, John W. Davis 4, Ritchie 3, Senator Harrison 2, McAdoo 12, Gov. Bryan 2.

That's what you might call impartial. Mr. Brennan is in a position to hop in any direction he chooses.

Indiana casts all her 30 votes for Gov. Ralston of course. And then Iowa gives her votes to McAdoo. The Missouri ladies applaud that, Kansas gives 20 votes to Gov. Jonathan M. Davis. Kentucky gives 26 votes to McAdoo. All she has to give.

Louisiana gives 26 votes to Pat Harrison of Mississippi. The South cheers that. Maine gives six and a half votes to Underwood, three and a half to Smith and 2 for McAdoo. Maryland gives her 16 votes to her able young governor, Ritchie.

Massachusetts gives one vote for Governor Brown of New Hampshire, one-half vote for Pat Harrison and one-half for McAdoo, 33 votes for Al. Smith. That brings cheers from the floor and the gallery.

Michigan casts 30 votes for Senator Ferris of that State. Minnesota votes 2 for Ritchie, one for Cox, one for Governor Bryan, two for Underwood, 2 for Robinson, one for John W. Davis, five for McAdoo and ten for Governor Al Smith. The one Western vote for Smith interests the crowd.

Mrs. Walker E. Wing, a good newspaper worker and leader delegate in the Missouri delegation, believes that everything will go well in this convention, in spite of troubles and noise. She tells this writer, fraternally, that the group of ladies in the Missouri delegation "bowed their heads in earnest prayer during the tumult on Saturday night."

Who can doubt that such earnest praying must have had a good effect.

Twenty-four States have voted. Al Smith has 64 against 146½ for McAdoo.

Returning to the prayer. You are confirmed in your belief in omniscience when you realize what it must mean in the way of organization to keep track of all the prayers that are found in 16,000,000 people on this earth, and all the people that pray on 116,000,000 other planets.

Mississippi gives 29 votes to Pat Harrison. Then it is announced that Missouri gives all her thirty-six votes for McAdoo, under the unit rule. A delegate challenges the vote and demands a poll of the delegation. Senator Walsh "passes Missouri." Montana gives seven votes for McAdoo, one to Smith.

Nebraska gives one vote to McAdoo, 15 to Governor Bryan. New York, with a lady speaking, gives her 90 votes to Governor Smith. That starts the best cheering, loudest, thus far. But nothing overwhelming compared with other Smith demonstrations.

North Carolina, 24 for McAdoo. And North Dakota gives McAdoo her 10 votes. McAdoo still holds his delegates, apparently. But this means nothing. To be nominated a man must receive 66⅔ per cent of all the votes, and that is hard to get.

Ohio gives 48 votes to Cox. Oklahoma 29 to McAdoo, and Oregon gives 10 votes to McAdoo.

Those Northwestern States, if they stick to McAdoo, may persuade La Follette not to run independently.

Pennsylvania splits up like Illinois, McAdoo 25½, Smith 25½. Cheers for that. Harrison 1 vote, Saulsbury 1, Senator Glass 1, Underwood 3½, Ritchie 1½, Thompson of Colorado 1, John W. Davis 4.

You can imagine that Al Smith and McAdoo, hearing every word of the voting on the radio, before people in the back of the hall can hear it here, must be interested in this counting. It is even exciting for those that are not candidates and that don't even want any job. Yet it is all perfunctory. Delegates are disguising their real plan by scattering votes, the leaders behind the scenes are thus making friends. They are going through with a promise and supporting in this preliminary canter the men to whom they are pledged.

Rhode Island, 10 votes for Smith, South Carolina, 18 votes for McAdoo, South Dakota gives 10 votes for McAdoo. Tennessee, 24 votes for McAdoo, Texas, 40 for McAdoo, Utah 8 for McAdoo. Vermont gives 1 to McAdoo, 7 for Smith.

Virginia, 24 votes for Senator Glass. It may interest you to know that if certain "big folks" have their way, Glass will be nominated. Washington, 14 votes for McAdoo. West Virginia, 16 votes for John W. Davis.

Wisconsin, 23 votes for Smith and 3 for McAdoo. Wyoming gives 6 votes to Senator Kendrick.

Alaska gives 3 to Governor Smith, 2 to Underwood and 1 to McAdoo. How many votes will come from Alaska later, when that land is fully peopled and brought by flying machine within a day's ride of anywhere in America.

District of Columbia, 6 for McAdoo. The people there are not allowed to vote, but that may change.

Hawaii gives 2 to McAdoo, 1 to Smith, 2 to Underwood, 1 to John W. Davis, 1 to Senator Robinson.

The Philippines, impartially, gives 3 to McAdoo and 3 to Smith. But they want to leave us, to be gobbled up by Japan. Too bad, and the Democratic platform promises to let them go. They want to go VERY much, and are probably dividing between Smith and McAdoo that they may surely be on good terms with the winner. Innocent Islanders, they little know what "politics" are coming.

Porto Rico gives 5 to Davis, 1 to Underwood. Porto Rico does not want to leave us.

The Canal Zone gives 6 to McAdoo. Now Arizona, which passed her vote, gives 4½ to McAdoo and ½ to Underwood. Now Missouri comes up again. Votes 36 for McAdoo under the unit rule. A delegate protests and the delegation will be polled. Missouri was announced as solid for McAdoo. If the break in his lines comes there it will mean something that some might know, think that if Missouri is released from the obligation to McAdoo the delegates will go to Carter Glass and John W. Davis.

The first woman to vote in Missouri's delegation is Mrs. Price McNutt Virginian. She is all in white with hair nicely bobbed, horn spectacles rich make her young face look younger, ermine collar. She is unusually intelligent, owner of a Missouri newspaper, in which she publishes every day an enlightening TODAY column. Written by A. Brisbane.

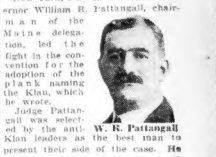
Not all of Missouri stands fat. You hear one feminine vote for McAdoo, and a number vote "present." But the poll will show the State for McAdoo, overwhelmingly. Mrs. Walker Ewing another able newspaper woman, votes for McAdoo. Several men voted "present," which means they don't choose to vote. Some of those voting "present" will be Smith men, when the time comes.

If you ever go into politics and begin "tying up" delegates, get as many women on your side as you can. They STICK and do not seem to hear very well, when politicians tell them what it "will be worth to break their promises." As far back as the beginning of the new testament, you find women proving their loyalty, far above that of men. It was not a woman that was started when the cock crowed.

PATTANGALL'S WIFE CAST HIS VOTE FOR KLAN

New York, July 1. — Former Governor William R. Pattangall, chairman of the Maine delegation, led the fight in the convention for the adoption of the plank naming the Klan, which he wrote.

Judge Pattangall was selected by the anti-Klan leaders as the best man to present their side of the case. He made a wonderful speech and stirred the convention to frenzy.



W. R. Pattangall

But Judge Pattangall's vote was cast for the Klan.

His vote for the Klan was cast by Mrs. Patangall. She sat in the convention as alternate for her husband. She could vote only when he was not present.

Worn out by his efforts in denouncing the Klan, he had left the hall for rest, and Mrs. Pattangall sat in his place in the delegation.

When the roll-call came the judge was still absent, then when Maine was reached Mrs. Pattangall cast her vote for the plank her husband had denounced in scathing terms.

When the judge found out what happened he was flabbergasted. "Ma" Pattangall was not.

"Though I did not realize the vote was so close," she said, "it would do the same again. I heard the judge's speech, of course, but it did not impress me. The judge was wrong. I am no friend of the Klan, but the Maine State Convention went on record as opposed to the mention of the Klan, and I propose to represent my State. And I so voted."

MRS. HARDING TO ENTER CAMPAIGN

Washington, June 30.—Friends of Mrs. Florence Kling Harding, widow of President Harding, say she intends to participate actively in the forthcoming campaign. Mrs. Harding is now in Washington, residing at one of the hotels. The one year period of mourning for the late President will end August 2. After that, according to her friends, Mrs. Harding will feel free to take part in political discussions. Some of her friends feel she will write a number of articles this Fall discussing events while Mr. Harding was President.

PLATFORM PLEASES BOTH WET AND DRY

New York, June 30.—The Democratic platform's planks on law enforcement and rights of the States were greeted with enthusiastic approval by the Anti-Saloon League and the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

One Montana gent got up to second nomination of Al Smith. He crocked like freshmen after first half of homecoming football game so floor went to Governor Sam V. Stewart, who made more noise, but for opposing team. He's for McAdoo. Moral, "keep seconders' whistles wet."

PARTY SAVED BY EVADING KLAN ISSUE, DECLARES BRYAN

DEFEAT OF PLANK PREVENTS CERTAIN SPLIT, HE SAYS

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

The great fight of the convention over religious liberty is over, and it will stand possibly without a parallel—first, because of the importance of the issues involved, and, second, because of the closeness of the vote.

No one who was present could fail to notice how the interest in this subject transcended the interest in all other matters considered. This is not unnatural, because religion is the basic thing in life. It is a matter of the heart and all the warmth of life is in the heart. The word "feeling" is usually used to distinguish heart-action, just as "thinking" is used to distinguish the action of the mind.

William J. Bryan

The platform which had been read immediately preceding the debate on the League and the Klan plank was the strongest ever adopted by a national convention. It covered a multitude of subjects, dealing with each in clear and incisive language.

As these planks were read, the more important of them were greeted with applause—varying applause. The range of this difference in applause did not measure the intellectual attitude of the convention, but rather the heart attitude.

All of the planks—except the few disputed ones—were approved by practically all the delegates. The applause measured the amount of feeling on the respective subjects treated, except on the reading of the plank on the League of Nations and the reading of the religious liberty plank, with the amendment offered by Mr. Pattangall.

There was no vociferous applause. Even the emphatic denunciation of the delinquencies of the Republican Administration—language calculated to stir partisan enthusiasm—provoked only a generous evidence of appreciation—no vehemence accompanying it.

The subject of war brought out a round of applause—enough to indicate the firmness of the determination of the average voter that war shall end, but the mention of the three mystic words, "Ku Klux Klan," was always marked by deafening noise.

One speaker from Georgia received a flattering ovation, not because his address was remarkable for thought, composition or delivery, but because he came from Georgia, the home of the Ku Klux Klan, and represented a small group that dissented from their fellow-delegates on this subject.

CALLED IT COWARDLY.

Delegates gathered round him; the standards of many States were carried over to his delegation, and he was finally lifted upon the shoulders of two stalwart men and carried about the hall.

This, together with the repeated cyclones of noise that whirled through the hall, whenever this subject was touched upon from the standpoint of those who wanted to mention the Klan by name, demonstrated that this plank would have been the dominating issue had it been inserted in the platform.

It would have been practically the only subject discussed in the disputed districts and states. This was one of the reasons which I gave for opposing it. To turn aside from the gigantic tasks assumed by our party in its effort to protect the masses from exploitation by the predatory interests would, in the opinion of the majority, have been a cowardly desertion of a sacred duty.

And yet every speaker who represented the minority managed to work in some word or phrase, suggesting that it was cowardly to evade the issues, as if it required more courage to throw a brick than to save a nation.

SAVED PARTY.

The defeat of the minority report has saved the party from division, as well as saved it from the charge of running away from an imperative work, viz., the protection of the common people, who have no other friends large enough to guard them from the assaults of corporate greed.

The defeat of the minority report also, saved the Christian church from being divided in the presence of a world task, to which no other organization is equal. The majority planks would have substituted a "hymn of hate" for "Blest be the tie that binds our hearts in Christian love."

The second fact deserving of notice is that the margin of the majority was seventeen-one hundredths of one vote—a result reached after a prolonged period of breathless interest, during which polls of delegations were demanded, challenges of votes made and changes recorded.

Men ran from one part of the hall to another trying to persuade delegates to change their votes. Excitement ran high. When the vote was finally announced, it stood 542 to 541 2-20. A rumor has been in circulation today that a revision of the count showed five more majority for the committee's report, but I have not, up to this writing, been able to confirm the report.

From the standpoint of the majority, the result was a very happy one; from the standpoint of the minority, it is consoling to have secured a vote so large and to have come so close to victory.

Possibly both sides will ultimately join in the belief that the termination of the contest could not have been more fortunate. It is quite natural that Catholic Democrats should have been angered by the unjust and unfair accusations made against them and their church.

It was quite human that they should seek to use for their vindication a party, to which they have contributed so liberally and for so long a time. They were just as devoted to party welfare as their opponents, and it is not to be wondered at that they magnified the advantages which they saw and minimized the dangers which their opponents feared; just as their opponents may have magnified the dangers and minimized the advantages.

This is the effect of unconscious bias and is no reflection upon honesty and sincerity of purpose. As it is, the party is saved from having it made an overshadowing issue, and the minority can quote its large vote as evidence of a large amount of sympathy in the party.

Even those who voted for the majority report had no sympathy with the attacks made, as is shown by their plank—which the minority endorsed—and by the further fact that the majority endorsed everything in the minority plank except the naming of the Klan by name.

ANTI-KLAN DEMONSTRATION AT DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

(International News Reel Photo)

When William Jennings Bryan, delegate-at-large from Florida, took the speakers' platform the cheering was so great that both he and Chairman Walsh had to motion for silence for a long time before their request was granted by the throng.

This picture shows former Attorney-General Pattengall of Maine delivering his speech on behalf of his delegation in which he insisted that the Ku Klux Klan be mentioned by name in the Democratic platform on religious freedom.

EXCITEMENT AT ITS HEIGHT

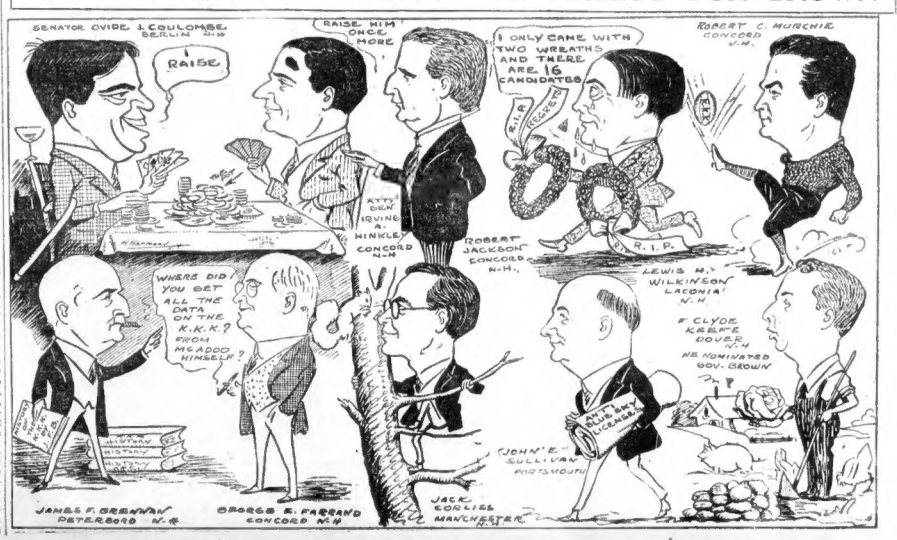
The greatest excitement of the convention came when the anti-klan demonstration took place following the anti-klan speech of Andrew C. Erwin of Georgia. The insets are (left), Senator Copeland of New York and (right) Senator Robinson of Arkansas, both "dark horses."

RALSTON CHALLENGES WORLD ON KU KLUX

Indianapolis, Ind., June 30.—Senator Samuel M. Ralston, reiterated his denial of any connection with the Ku Klux Klan and challenged anyone "who has doubt as to the truthfulness of my statement," to disclose their information to the public. He added:

"I have heretofore informed the world that I am not a member of the organization or any of its branches. I take it from the persistence of the world in inquiring further into my supposed relations to this organization it has doubts as to the truthfulness of my statement. If it has such doubts, I submit it is time for it to disclose its information to the public."

GRANITE STATERS WAITING TO BALLOT FOR BROWN



QUIGLEY ASKS 'BOODLE' PROBE BY BORAH

New York, June 1 (Universal). — Senator William E. Borah, chairman of the special commission on corrupt campaign expenditures was invited today to come to this city and start an investigation at once of the campaign expenses of William G. McAdoo, of the activities of the Ku Klux Klan and of the campaign funds of other candidates who seek the Democratic nomination for President.

The request was sent him by Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea, Mass., the Massachusetts delegate who created a furore in Madison Square Garden by repeatedly challenging the votes of the States he suspected of being unduly friendly to the Klan.

"There is money galore in the McAdoo coffers," he declared. "Where it comes from I don't know, but the public has a right to know the where and how and why of every penny spent by every candidate who aspires to be President of the United States.

"Delegates in New York were strapped a day ago. But some of them are now blossoming out with an affluence of finance that makes it look like some one has discovered an Alaska goldmine.

"McAdoo has an enormous suite in a high-priced hotel that would make King George green with envy.

McADOO'S MANAGER LAUDS D. I. WALSH

New York, June 30.—Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts was praised by Judge D. L. Rockwell, the McAdoo campaign manager, in an interview as "probably the outstanding Irish Catholic in American political life."

Judge Rockwell lauded the Bay State junior Senator particularly for his declaration that "we stand four square behind the platform and the candidate of the convention regardless of the result of the balloting on this minority report touching the issue of religious freedom."

Quigley of Chelsea Proved Himself 'Horatio at Bridge,' Says Swerling

By JOE SWERLING

Madison Square Garden, New York, June 30.—The eyes of the Democratic National Convention today are upon five men from New England.

One of them is former Governor William T. Pattangall of Augusta, Me., the man who flung the minority Ku Klux Klan report into the teeth of the convention and supported it with plain talk that woke the tired enthusiasms of the galleries to new fire.

A second is Mayor Lawrence J. Quigley of Chelsea, the Democratic "Horatio at the Bridge," who stemmed the tide when it seemed as if the minority Klan plank would be heavily beaten and who brought it finally to a point where only four and thirty-one hundredthsof one vote stood in the way of victory.

Quigley threw the convention into uproar after uproar.

He defied the Ku Klux States and delegates, defied Chairman Walsh, defied the whole convention in his stubborn effort to keep the anti-Klux vote from defeating the minority plank which insisted the Klan be denounced by name rather than polite innuendo.

He didn't stand alone either. In front of him stood "Fighting Bob" Dinsmore of East Boston, already the hero of a dozen convention floor fist fights, and ready to make it a lucky thirteen if anybody attempted to interfere with Quigley, who kept roaring:

"Mr. Chairman, Mr. Chairman, I rise to a point of order!"

Dinsmore, Donaghue and Breen formed a guard for Quigley as, time after time, the Chelsea mayor arose and threw a monkey wrench into the already clogged convention machinery.

Chairman Walsh may forget many things that happened at this convention but he will never forget the wind-up of the state roll call on the klan minority report, when Quigley, like a gadfly who couldn't be stood off, stung him time and again with interruptions that threw the galleries into frenzies of applause.

The chairman of the New Hampshire delegation had announced the vote of his group in favor of the majority report.

Quigley was on his feet in an instant, shouting: "Mr. Chairman, I rise to a point or order."

There was trepidation in the voice of Chairman Walsh as he demanded: "What does the gentleman from Massachusetts wish?"

"I wish to challenge the vote of the New Hampshire delegation."

"A delegate from one state can't challenge the vote of another delegation," shouted the chairman hoarsely.

That made no difference to Quigley. He stood like a rock, with Dinsmore, Donaghue and Breen around him, ready to finish anything that might be started.

Walsh made repeated demands that Quigley take his seat. Quigley flatly refused. He continued to yell in his booming voice:

"Mr. Chairman, Mr. Chairman."

Finally, at the suggestion of the delegation chairman, another Walsh, known to the local boys as Dave, Quigley sat down. But not for long. The Georgia vote was announced, strongly in favor of the majority Klan report.

"Mr. Chairman, Mr. Chairman."

It was Quigley again.

"What does the gentleman from Massachusetts want now?" demanded Walsh, challenge the accuracy of the vote of the Georgia delegation."

"I have explained that you're out of order."

"I stand on my rights. I challenge the vote of Georgia. I demand a poll of the delegation."

It was five minutes before Chairman Walsh could restore order. It was when the final vote was announced, the vote that licked the minority plank by less than one vote that Quigley again leaped to his feet with his booming call of "Mr. Chairman."

The chairman knew better than to question him. He merely nodded and Quigley yelled: "Mr. Chairman, I challenge the vote of the entire convention and I demand a poll of every State."

In the howling turmoil that followed Quigley got down on one of the Southern States a motion to adjourn and it was carried with a bang.

All night long the Massachusetts delegation congused in the lobby of the Belmont Hotel. The New York delegation was bitterly arraigned.

"We had to do all the fighting for Al Smith," said Bob Dinsmore. "His own crowd sat tight. Quigley isn't going to quit. Right at this moment he is the standard bearer for Al Smith—more so than Brennan of Illinois or Moore of Ohio or anybody in the New York delegation.

"Massachusetts has taken up the fight, and Massachusetts will never quit. That vote will never stand. We don't propose to let balloting on the presidency begin until the matter of the minority plank on the Klan has been taken care of.

"We need a poll of every delegation at the convention and a complete recount and we're going to get it at any cost.

Quigley attended church at St. Agnes' with Governor and Mrs. Smith, and was introduced by the governor to several hundred persons who gathered there.

Incidentally there's another member of the Massachusetts delegation who won fame. He is Walter Welsh of Provincetown, who cast his half vote in favor of the majority plank on the Klan. From remarks made by other members of the Massachusetts delegation, it is a fame not likely to be very pleasant.

Conferences of the Bay State group continued at the hotel, planning any attack at the convention today.

If the efforts of the Massachusetts delegation to obtain a poll of the entire convention on the Klan plank are ignored, anything may happen.

10 HIGHPOWER STATIONS IN CHICAGO

Some Light Shed on This Complex Arrangement of Radiocasters

With ten high-power radio stations in operation, Chicago occupies an unusual distinction in the field.

Including the stations that have passed out of existence, among them WBU, operated by the City of Chicago, there have been sixteen working in Chicago and its suburbs within the short time broadcasting has become popular.

The city's pioneer in the radiocast field KYW, is still in operation.

The former station WMAF, now WGN, and owned my The Chicago Tribune, grew from the dreams of two amateurs. At the start a low powered transmitter, it has advanced to a station that can reach Australia.

Station WAAF, owned by the Chicago Drovers' Journal, has its principal broadcasting period devoted to the distribution of livestock markets.

The first station to be operated exclusively by a newspaper, WMAQ, also is an "old-timer." It has been improved until now it has a record of many long-distance listeners.

Following in the list of stations is WEBH, formerly WJAZ, which is now partly maintained by The Chicago Evening Post. One of the principal achievements has been the late night transmission of the news of the McMillan Arctic expedition. The call letters WJAZ are to be given to a new station.

Other stations are WTAY at Oak Park, WTAS at Elgin, official American Legion station, and WCBD at Zion, located in the Chicago district. WTAS is being improved to make it the most powerful station maintained and operated exclusively by an amateur. WCBD is owned and operated by Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Christ Catholic Apostolic church in Zion. Its principal feature is the broadcasting of classical music and the sermons of Overseer Voliva.

The youngest station WQJ, was preceded by WLS, in whose open season its concerts are broadcast. Agriculture co-operates. Of the newer stations, WLS is the most powerful and in its brief existence has piled up a lengthy distance record.

NEW IDEA IN BALANCED R.F. SET

Capacity and Inductance May Be Separately Varied for Best Results

Here is a novel idea in radiofrequency that is unusual enough to make it worth trying for DX in Summer.

The feature of the hookup is a combination of variable capacity and inductance that may be balanced separately for each wavelength.

In r.f. amplification, the best adjustment is just below the oscillation point. The antenna tuning condenser in the set shown today is designed to permit a varying inductance to be inserted in the circuit for each wavelength.

The theory in tuning, then, is to get as much inductance in the circuit from the antenna variometer as is possible short of oscillation. If the set starts to oscillate, the cure is to drop back on the inductance and retune to the station with the condenser.

The coupling device is a choke coil coupled to a second variometer.

The special parts required are two large variometers, a 23-plate variable condenser; a midget variable condenser, and a choke coil, which may be the secondary of any iron core transformer.

The midget variable condenser may be mounted inside the set, and a semi-permanent adjustment made. If the set covers the waveband without it, leave it out; but it may be necessary for the high wave stations.

To tune, set the antenna condenser at minimum and tune V2 until you hear the station or its beat note. Tune the variometer until signals or whistles come in loudest.

If set is still oscillating, turn antenna condenser a few degrees and retune with the variometer. Operating until reception is cleared. Just below oscillation is the most sensitive spot.

WLW IS LATEST TO TAKE UP ILO

The Spanish and French lessons taught by radio from WLW in Cincinnati are meeting much hearty responses that a new language will be added in September. Ilo, "La Internacional Lingua," will enable listeners in other countries to enjoy the numbers announced from the Crosley station, for plans now being formulated will include the entire director's announcements in several languages. In addition to the announcements, students will be taught the Ilo language in the regular Crosley Radio University classes.

NEW SIZE FOR VERTICAL B BATTERY

A new size of vertical type B battery has just been placed on the market by the Burgess Battery Company. This is designed for portable sets. It carries 45 volts, with a 2½ volt tap, using 4by binding posts, which prevent accidental short circuit. The size is 2⅛x4¼x5⅞ inches and the weeight is 2¼ pounds. It fits conveniently with the dry cell A batteries.

ON THE AIR LAST NIGHT

BY THE LISTENER

The usual church services were to be had last night. Dr. Masses preached out of WDBR, Tremont Temple, while from Park Street Church through WNAC, President Charles A. Blanchard, president of Wheaton College, Wheaton, Illinois, was heard to good advantage.

Dr. Wheaton has a voice which is impressive in itself. Entirely void of any theatrical effect, his words seemed to find their place. Dr. Blanchard has that is perhaps the greatest gift any speaker could have who uses the radio—the faculty of making you feel as though you are being told a story, and at the same time getting his message across.

I deliberately passed up the Roxy program in order that I wouldn't miss the W. S. Quinby Co. program from WNAC. This program was given by artists comprising the Vannini Ensemble of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The assisting artists were Miss Louise Badarucco, soprano, and Mr. Ralph Talliby, baritone.

Lovers of beautiful orchestra music could not help but get supreme satisfaction out of the selections played by this group of highly skilled musicians. From their first number, the William Tell Overture, through the whole program, there was naught but harmony of the smoothest kind.

As I heard Mr. Talfby sing the Prologue from "I Pagliacci," and thought it mighty well done. His splendid voice was apparently in first class shape, and my only disappointment was that she didn't sing long enough. I would like to hear her again.

The organ from WBZ last night was indeed a treat. Whether it was the organist, the organ he was playing on, or a combination of both, I am at loss to explain. It is sufficient to say that it was better than usual. Mr. Smith's playing of "Murmuring Zephyrs" by Jensen was entirely to my liking. WBZ will do well to continue these broadcasts from the Steinert organ studio.

Later in the evening I tuned over to WJAR, and listened for a while to the Shinner Organ Company program. It came through plenty loud enough, but just about the time I started to really enjoy it, a noisy humming noise started in, which drowned out everything on the dial, excepting WNAC.

This is the same humming noise which bothered me last winter so much, and whether it is due to the street car tracks or the street lighting circuit, I am unable to determine. It is, however, terribly bad on the higher wavelengths.

In my opinion, especially after my experiments of last week with erasmic short wave receiving, broadcasting stations which continue to use short waves, will ultimately be those most in favor.

As an example, I can always get WNAC no matter how bad the local interference is, whereas WGY, who is on 360 meters, the reception is not only crowded with interference from other broadcasting stations, but is subject to the least noise caused by power lines and leaky transformers in the neighborhood.

Apropos of short wave reception, I have loaned the 100-meter receiver I built to the Radio Editor, and he says if he likes the way it works, he is going to tell you something about it in the news columns.

RADIO QUERIES

In my 5-tube Superflex at certain points on the I get raging noises. Batteries O. K. Tried several crystals. Also get loud hum when I touch first dial with my hand. Had to add eight turns to primary of second coil to make crystal work. W. E. H.

Your first statements are probably incorrect in value, most likely C6. This is perhaps also the reason why you had to add eight turns to primary. A noisy receiver, it means that the extra turns on primary are too many. Also check up on the possibility of mechanical defects in the variable condensers.

Will the enclosed 1-tube hookup work? Should the positive or negative of the B battery connect to the phones? N. C.

As you have drawn the diagram, the B minus should connect to the phones. The wire to leave the plus B on the plate of the tube.

Tubes in my Superflex light all right, phone terminals click, hums slightly when crystal is open, holders when grid is touched, but do not get a signal. Should two parts of crystal touch each other? G. H. O.

There are a number of things that may cause this. One of the condensers may be shorted, the tube may not make good contact with socket, may be open or short in audio transformer, or in spite of your check, the wiring may be wrong. Do not quite understand your query about the crystal. The detector should certainly touch the crystal unless you are using a diode tube.

Is this drawing correct? I have connected my set according to it, but get poor results. T. F. M.

The grid is however, slightly confusing in the connections to the coils. The antenna should better follow a regular hookup diagram there.

You show a diagram for a storage B battery. I have one which I think is a dry cell. Is there any danger in charging it for A.C. or D.C.? Also what solution of soda should I use? A. B. C.

This is for alternating current. Solution of bicarbonate of soda. We are doubtful about polarity, dip the end of the charging wires in water. The negative wire will collect bubbles.

Local stations come in with tremendous volume on my Super, but I cannot get distant stations without having my r.f. tube turned on full. Should this be so? H. B.

It would seem to indicate a low A battery, or worn-out tube.

Can a Crosley book type condenser be used with a plate condenser on the Superflex? R. S.

Such a condenser will work, but you would lose one of the advantages of the set—the dials would not read alike, and you could not calibrate the set.

I want to report for the benefit of Superflex fans that the set needs no good crystal. I caused you out for months with a while I mounted with extra turns on the second coil primary, and tried Carborundum. It is fourth works perfectly, and on two tubes I am getting WBZ, WJAR, WGY and the locals on a loud speaker with beautiful quality. G. L. M.

Thanks for your report. It is unfortunate that crystals vary so, but it cannot be helped, and for portable sets they are to be preferred to tubes.

I get WNAC on my Super at 15-15, WCAP comes in at 55-60. There is considerable cracking noise on the higher wavelengths. Would it improve set if I used an Erla 6 to 1 transformer on first stage or could I use a 10 to 1 transformer? Do you consider ribbon antennas best? L. B.

Hard to say what cracking noise is unless it is static. It may, however, be caused by a mechanical defect in the variable condensers. The high ratio transformers are not recommended unless you prefer extra volume.

Saw your note the other day about distance in the daytime. I have a 5-tube Acme and can pull in WGY, WJZ, WNAC, WEAN and WJAR any day they are on. Last Thursday I had WGR and WJZ. New York, at 4:00 p. m. on loud speaker, faint but clear. J. D. F.

A 5-tube set we know of has heard KDKA is of somewhat it has opened to be ADKA's 360-meter broadcast. We think your report is good.

I have built a Superflex, widing my own coils, and I think they have caused some trouble. Can you tell me how I can get diamond wound coils for this set? A. E. J.

The value of the manufacturer has been mailed you.

Will your Acme 50KC long wave transformer work in the ultraflex circuit? Would it be correct to go by circuit published recently? No Name.

Yes to both.

What station broadcasts selections by the Apollo Male orchestra? J. F.

This is WRHF, in Providence.

INSULATE THE LEAD-IN WIRE

A lead-in wire should be insulated. Because the outside of the house is generally damp, the aerial will be grounded if the bare lead-in wire makes contact with the wet board. A grounded antenna is useless.

A MUFFLER FOR YOUR CHARGER

Much of the noise of a storage battery charger may be avoided by set-

'NEW ENGLAND WEEK' FAIR TO BOOM HOME PRODUCTS

In the interest of New England prosperity, a great merchandise fair, to be known as "New England Week" will be observed all over New England, from September 15 to 20, 1924.

A group of some of the most prominent of New England men and organizations, including the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston and its governor, W. P. G. Harding; the Massachusetts Retail Merchants' Association and its president, Fred Warren, and the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, with its president, Robert Amory, have assisted in formulating plans for this "Week."

Simultaneously in every New England community today the first announcement of these plans was made in a proclamation telling of the New England Week idea, and asking the co-operation of the press, business men, farmers, labor and the public throughout the six New England States.

The committee, which comprises the various men and organizations to be known as the "All New England Committee," with headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce Building, Boston.

QUICKEN INTEREST

The paramount purpose of the fair, as set forth in the proclamation, is that of quickening the interest of New Englanders in the products of their section of the country—the merchandise of the New England factories and the produce of the New England farms, on both of which New England prosperity depends.

One of the primary purposes is to demonstrate to the world how extensive and well-distributed are the products of New England factories.

A third important object is to make the people of New England better acquainted with the methods by which New England products are manufactured and marketed, their varied uses and the quality of the merchandise placed on the markets of New England and the world by New England hands, brains and capital.

Above all, the inherent integrity of New England goods will be demonstrated through the medium of a gigantic exhibition of the goods themselves.

LABORER GLORIFIED.

New England labor is not to be neglected in the plans for "New England Week," nor are the New England farmers.

The New England workmen, as well as New England capital and management, will be glorified. The interest already shown by labor in the New England idea is proven by the representation on the "All New England Committees" of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor and its secretary-treasurer, Martin T. Joyce, and the Boston Central Labor Union with its president, Harry Grages.

The farmers are represented on the committee by the Eastern States Farmers' Exchange and the Massachusetts Fruit Growers' Association, with their executive heads, Howard W. Selby and S. Lothrop Davenport, respectively.

MAKE CONTRIBUTIONS.

The proclamation of the committee is printed on paper contributed for the purpose by the S. D. Warren Company, Cumberland Mills, Maine. The typography and press work was contributed by the Berkeley Press of Boston, and the mailing was handled by the Boston Mailing Company.

All the kinds and varieties of New England merchandise will be equally stressed.

The broad scope of the plans for the "week" is further shown by the following aims which the publicity sub-committee briefly mentions in an announcement:

To stress the quality of New England products and to discourage any tendency toward or desire for unwarranted price-cutting.

To popularize the products of local factories among local retailers, some of whom are inclined to purchase their wares at distant places—to the detriment of the prosperity of the very community on which they depend for their own sales and livelihood.

To "sell" New England to New Englanders—to popularize New England in New England.

To bring more orders to our shops from outside New England.

STIMULATE LOCAL PRIDE.

To stimulate local pride, giving the people an opportunity to visit the stores and factories with the idea of becoming better acquainted with merchandise they can utilize.

To urge the people to buy at home what can be bought advantageously at home.

To give salesmen from every community a chance to say truthfully, "Our own townspeople prefer to use our wares,"—a real, honest selling argument, testifying to the good quality of the goods produced in each community.

To teach New Englanders the economic truth that we must produce and sell and export with great earnestness in order to have the wherewithal to buy outside New England the things New England does not produce.

PROSPERITY FOR ALL.

To drive home to New Englanders the fact that prosperity for one class in the community can come only in conjunction with prosperity to the other classes.

Further information can be obtained from the committee. Other announcements will be made in the near future.

Among the organizations represented on the "All New England Committee," together with their personal spokesmen, are the Advertising Club of Boston, William F. Rogers, president; Associated Industries of Massachusetts, Clifford S. Anderson, president; Boston Automobile Dealers' Association, Inc., J. H. MacAdam, president; Boston Central Labor Union, Harry Grages, president; Boston Chamber of Commerce, Howard Coonley, president.

Others are the Boston Wool Trade Association, Sidney A. Eisemann, president; Eastern States Farmers' Exchange, Howard W. Selby, general manager; Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, W. P. G. Harding, governor; Massachusetts Federation of Labor, Martin T. Joyce, secretary-treasurer; Massachusetts Fruit Growers' Association, S. Lothrop Davenport, president; Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange, W. Franklin Burnham, president.

Massachusetts Retail Merchants' Association, Fred Warren, president; Massachusetts State Chamber of Commerce, Edward G. Bracy, general secretary; Massachusetts Wholesale Lumber Association, Vernon M. Hawkins, president; National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, Robert Amory, president; New England Bakers' Association, George C. West, president; New England Hardware Dealers' Association, J. H. Williams, vice-president; New England Hotel Association, Frank C. Hall, president.

New England Manufacturing Jewelers' & Silversmiths' Association, Edgar M. Doherty, president; New England Purchasing Agents' Association, Inc., Paul R. Brennan, president; New England Shoe & Leather Association, Thomas F. Anderson, secretary; Providence Chamber of Commerce, Richard R. Watson, general secretary; Retail Trade Board, Felix Vorenberg, president; Traffic Club of New England, Arthur P. Russell, president.

'COP' REPORTS SELF FOR DUTY NEGLECT

Conscience Forbids Him to Hide the Fact He Fell Asleep on Post

When Patrolman Michael Farren of Station No. 5 is called before a trial board for neglect of duty he will be the leading and in fact the only witness for the prosecution.

Farren has an ingrowing conscience, and when he fell asleep on post a night or two ago he violated one of the rules of the department. Consequently, when he awoke, he called up his superior officer and reported himself for delinquency.

It was in the waiting room of the City Hospital it happened, the conscientious policeman says. He was waiting for the attendant from the accident ward, and the latter was so long in coming that Farren went into a doze. Farren's superiors call him an ideal officer, but other patrolmen incline to believe that he has almost too much conscience.

PICK ALIENISTS FOR TRIAL OF BARING

Prosecution Again Denied Dismissal of Indictment in Poison Case

White Plains, N. Y., June 30.—The prosecution today prevailed upon Judge Bleakley to appoint alienists to examine Clarence O. Baring, on trial for the attempted murder of his wife. The trial was adjourned until tomorrow and Baring was turned over to the alienists.

A forty-five minute conference of the judge, the opposing attorneys and alienists in the courtroom was followed by the appointment of Dr. George Kirby, professor at the Cornell University Medical School, and Dr. William L. Russell of the Bloomingdale Asylum at White Plains.

Baring, his hands and face twitching almost continually during his short stay in the courtroom, took no active part in the proceedings. Mrs. Baring also was there, accompanied by a niece, Miss Georgianna Griffiths, of Providence, R. I.

An Imaginary Interview Between A Merchant and an Advertising Man On the Subject of "Class"

THE MERCHANT:
You know something of advertising mediums?

THE ADVERTISING MAN:
I know what constitutes a good one —CIRCULATION.

THE MERCHANT:
You mean that is the first thing to consider?

THE ADVERTISING MAN:
Yes, Sir.

THE MERCHANT:
And what is the last thing?

THE ADVERTISING MAN:
The same thing.

THE MERCHANT:
But how about class?

THE ADVERTISING MAN:
No change in the remedy—CIRCULATION.

THE MERCHANT:
But aren't you overlooking social distinctions?

THE ADVERTISING MAN:
On the contrary, I am overtaking them!

THE MERCHANT:
You mean that circulation takes care of class?

THE ADVERTISING MAN:
Yes, provided it is big enough.

THE MERCHANT:
But isn't class usually spoken of in terms of small circulation?

THE ADVERTISING MAN:
No, it is the other way about; it is small circulations that are spoken of in terms of class.

THE MERCHANT:
Still you must admit that class is limited?

THE ADVERTISING MAN:
Yes, it is so limited and so scattered that the only thing on earth that can go out and gather it up and transform it into a buying unit is GREAT CIRCULATION.

THE MERCHANT:
Then, you recommend circulation equally for the popular and the particular?

THE ADVERTISING MAN:
Particularly for the particular.

THE MERCHANT:
But suppose a business is so high-class that its patrons are as exclusive as a needle in the haystack?

THE ADVERTISING MAN:
Buy the haystack!

THE MERCHANT:
You make no reservations for a business many of whose patrons are in the Social Blue Book?

THE ADVERTISING MAN:
Certainly not! You don't buy advertising to create reservations, but to overcome them. And anyway, just what do you mean by the Social Blue Book?

THE MERCHANT:
Well, I do not wish to be taken too literally. What I meant was people of means and refinement.

THE ADVERTISING MAN:
I understand the distinction perfectly, but it is true, is it not, that you would rather sell $50 worth of goods to a family circle than $5 to a family tree?

THE MERCHANT:
Yes, I suppose I would.

THE ADVERTISING MAN:
So that you are really more interested in Bank Books than in Blue Books?

THE MERCHANT:
Of course.

THE ADVERTISING MAN:
In other words, people with the price are more necessary to you than people with a past?

THE MERCHANT:
Yes, if you want to put it that way.

THE ADVERTISING MAN:
But what other way is there to put it? I am not condemning class, but defending it. What I am condemning is the erroneous conception of what constitutes class and the ruinous small circulation methods of trying to reach it.

THE MERCHANT:
Then you believe that great circulation is vital to an exclusive business?

THE ADVERTISING MAN:
I believe that great circulation is the sovereign remedy for all business but I purposely emphasize its value for exclusive class advertisers, because they are so often misled by the social fetish which is the refuge of small circulations.

THE MERCHANT:
The better element, of course, must be catered to.

THE ADVERTISING MAN:
Precisely. But the man who builds his business exclusively on other people's ancestors won't have much of a business to leave to his heirs!

THE MERCHANT:
You are referring, obviously, to THE BOSTON AMERICAN?

THE ADVERTISING MAN:
No. I am speaking of all newspapers impersonally. The Boston American's circulation by any other name would be just as good—IF YOU COULD GET IT!

TRIANGLE IN SEPARATION SUIT

(International News Reel Photos)

Because he tended to act better in the role of Blanche Yurka's husband, Ina Keith (at left), who is suing his wife for separation, has been served with a counter suit by Miss Yurka (at right), who names Miss Rambeau (in cen ter), without implication of impropriety. The trouble all started when Miss Yurka found Miss Rambeau's picture on Keith's dressing table in a place where she thought her own should be.

"Lifer" Jesse Pomeroy Puts Yearning in V...

REVEALS HIS LOVE OF HOME

Poem Written for Prison Magazine Shows Considerable Merit

All the secret yearnings for the home that is forever denied to Jesse Pomeroy are revealed in a poem written by the notorious life term prisoner for June number of the Mentor, a monthly magazine published by the prisoners of Charlestown State Prison.

The poem is entitled "That House of Mine" and is of considerable merit. Pomeroy, who has served more than forty-eight years of his sentence, rates the poem by a typewriter in the use of which he has become an expert during the last eight months. His previous literary efforts were written by hand

Under the pen name of "Grandpa," Pomeroy's latest poem reads:

Perchance you may invite me to
The place where you've spent years not few—
My house, you say, you're welcome there,
Put luck at times, to gladly share;
That's very well, but let me say
I'll match your offer, any day,
Just read along, if you incline,
And hear about that house of mine

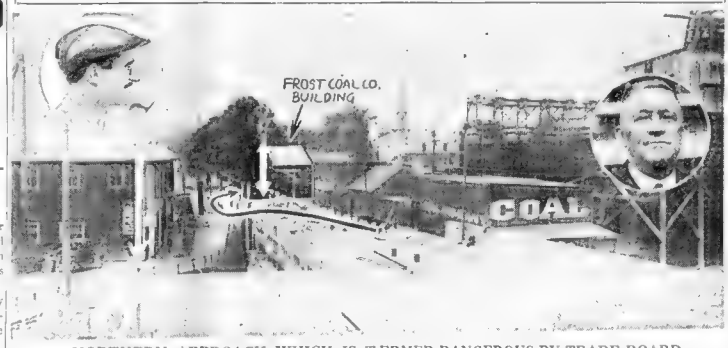
By hardy toil, 'twas slowly made,
With money earned, or mortgage laid,
Of wood, or brick or stone maybe
'Is taste inclinc, or plans agree;
It's stories rise to heights aglow,
Is set from East to West may go
And all about that house of mine
Are forests green—filled acres fine

Such is the house in dream I see,
In place or clime unknown to me;
And from the windows, watchful eyes
Are brimmed with joy, where one expies
Across the brook the inner pare
Of him who wandered forth to fare
His boyhood lot—long years agone
And now returns, grayhaired, forlorn.

That house of mine, true welcome hands,
To him who at its portals stands;
And they who in its walls abide,
All care and sorrow lock outside,
With minds at peace, and cheerful heart,
And helpful souls, who would impart
The secret of its inward calm,
Whose friendliness would heal and charm,

That house of mine—it matters not
How grand its frame, or poor the spot;
Not poverty, or wealth can be
A standard fair for you or me;
Content to dwell—that house of mine
Stands forth to me in storm or shine;
And bids me stay, no more to roam
For there, you see, I find a—home.

NEPONSET BRIDGE WHICH STIRS CRITICISM



NORTHERN APPROACH WHICH IS TERMED DANGEROUS BY TRADE BOARD

White arrow and dotted line at right shows where northern approach of Old Colony boulevard to bridge would cut through buildings as originally planned. A dangerous "S" curve will result at Taylor street, it is charged, if present plans are followed by going around a small building indicated by arrow over its roof. At left, arrow points to old car house of the Eastern Street Railway Company, flush against which the northern end of the bridge abutments are to rest, making a break in the sightly concrete abutment and leaving the front of the old building directly on the bridge line. Insert at left is of Arthur Oakman of Neponset, one of those who started the remonstrance and who asserts that the protest will be taken to the State House. Insert at right is of John F. Riley of the Dorchester Board of Trade Committee, which is also lodging a protest.

BRIDE SAYS HUSBAND BEAT HER

Everett Man Lands in Jail in Ottawa as Sad End to Honeymoon Trip

Six weeks a married man, Harry Whitfield Laite, of Everett, Boston and points north, is under arrest in Ottawa, Can., charged with beating his lovely bride

She is the daughter of a wealthy engineer of Ottawa, and when she ran screaming from her apartment in quite inadequate attire she gave the staid Canadians the biggest thrill of the summer season

To the police the weeping bride said that her bridegroom had developed a cave man complex and was lost through giving her a scientific beating

Laite refused to open the door of his storm wrecked domicile when the police arrived and they broke down the door, according to Ottawa advices. He was found walking up and down between rows of empty whisky bottles

"I never struck her; I never struck her," he shouted, when he was accused. But his face was scratched and his left arm was in a sling and the room bore eloquent testimony that some sort of a battle had been staged there

Laite lived for a long time with his brother, Gilbert M. Laite, at No. 40 Hancock street, Everett. Last ... another brother went to Ottawa ... Laite ... Boston

Explorer Sails From Panama With 3 Blond Indians

Panama, June 30.—Richard O. Marsh, the American explorer, sailed for the United States on the Cahamarra with the three blond Indians he brought with him from Darien recently. The Indians—a girl and two boys—are declared by him to be specimens of the "white Indians" sought for four months in the jungles of southeastern Panama.

New York, June 30.—At just what stage would a friendliness between Shakespeare's Rosalind and Orlando become objectionable to Orlando's wife?

Of course, Shakespeare's Orlando didn't have a wife until the lawn party in the last act, but Shakespeare's been dead a long time and customs change

The issue perhaps is not pressing enough to engage the attention of the Democratic convention platform committee, but it will come before the New York Supreme Court today in the separation suit brought by Blanche Yurka, dramatic star, against Ian Keith who, despite the disparity of monickers is her husband.

Ian played Orlando to Marjorie Rambeau's Rosalind last season and now Mrs. Ian, whose other name is Yurka, expresses her utter willingness to let him play the shy bit fast working wooer to Miss Rambeau in real life.

Approached for her version of the Keith embroglio in Philadelphia, Miss Rambeau presented the following minority resolution: "Have him? Believe me, no. He was just an actor in my company. Beyond that we were merely friends."

Miss Yurka can't see it that way at all.

Her version is that from the time Ian played in "As You Like It" with Miss Rambeau his status as a loving husband was all shot to pieces

"His affection for me waned from the moment he entered Miss Rambeau's company," she said. "He stopped coming home days and nights and he drank heavily. He kept that woman's picture in the dresser. So I started suit for separation."

APPROACHES TO BRIDGE CALLED DANGER SPOTS

Agitation among Dorchester and Neponset residents and property owners over the manner of completing the new $1,000,000 draw bridge over the Neponset river and dredging the portion of the Metropolitan improvement for the sloped hip hazard plans followed in constructing the Old Colony boulevard approaches to the bridge may end in a bitter wrangle at the State House in the near future.

Tomorrow it will be formally opened for general vehicular and pedestrian traffic.

It is an important link in the main artery of Dorchester's northern section and will be under jurisdiction since July 1st.

A feature of the new bridge is an 80 foot [illegible] draw. The bridge as completed is a model of the builder's craft

BAD CURVES SCORED.

As far as fine. But, in the opinion of the Dorchester Board of Trade "investigating" committee of which former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald is a member, the project is a "driver," because of the following:

1—Two extremely dangerous curves in the boulevard approaches to the bridge. The first is at the Boston end of the bridge where the Old Colony Boulevard (now under construction) curves sharply at Taylor street to avoid an old tumbledown building on the property of the Frost Coal Company. The other is at the Atlantic end

2—The beauty of the approach to the bridge is marred by the building line of the Frost Coal Company on one side of Neponset avenue and one belonging to the realty companies on the western side.

3—The northern end of the bridge abutments are to be built flush against the south walls of the wooden building of the trolley road, making a break in the sightly concrete abutment and leaving the front of the old building directly on the bridge line.

STATE HOUSE FIGHT.

With the return of John F. Fitzgerald from the Democratic convention in New York the Dorchester Board of Trade committee will swing into action.

Arthur Oakman of No. 3 Oakman street, Neponset, who with John H. Riley of No. 11 Clover street, started the drive all of remonstrance rolling speaking for the objectors, agreed that if anything is to be done to right matters instant action is necessary

Hughes was left on guard outside the house while McNeill and Lally climbed through the open window and started a search of the house. In a second floor bedroom they found Deming.

The prisoner at Brookline police station admitted that he had robbed the home of Parker H. Custis at No. 47 Cotswold road, Fisher Hill. A watch fob and several stick pins taken from the Custis home were found in the possession of the burglar. The police believe Deming also entered the home of Phineas A. Rice at No. 286 Clark road, just around the corner from the Custis home.

ADMITS LOOTING.

Deming admitted to the police that he made a specialty of leaving what Brookline families had closed their homes for the Summer, and that he leisurely entered these homes and looted them of jewelry and other valuables. He denied having an accomplice.

An attempt on the part of two men to enter the home of J. H. Bowditch at No. 225 Tappan street Brookline, was foiled when police were notified and arrived on the scene as the men were placing a ladder against the rear of the home.

BOSTON ROBBERIES

At the home of Frank C. Otto at No. 1475 Commonwealth avenue, Allston, thieves were more successful. They looted the home during the absence of the family and secured plunder valued at $1,000. Jewelry, clothing and $150 in Liberty Bonds were among the loot.

Stasiak and Lewis Clash at Arena
Tomorrow evening Stanley Stasiak and Strangler Ed Lewis will clash in the feature bout at the Arena for the world's wrestling title.

Twilighters Closing in League Battle
Many of the Twilight League teams will play their hardest this week in hopes of ending the first half of the season with a good percentage.

LEWIS AND STASIAK READY FOR WORLD'S TITLE MAT BOUT

LABRIOLA TO BATTLE HENRY

By JACK CONWAY.

STRANGLER LEWIS and Stanley Stasiak will hold the centre of the sporting stage in Boston this week. These famous grapplers will battle for the world's heavyweight wrestling championship in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, at the Boston Arena tomorrow night.

Lewis is now the ruler of his class. His expert knowledge of every trick of the mat game and tremendous strength have enabled him to turn back the young men who have threatened his position.

For a time John Pesek, so-called "Tiger Man," was the outstanding challenger. Lewis then battled Pesek and satisfied the public world when he won two falls inside of an hour.

That was a year ago. Since then the Strangler has not fared so well. Where he formerly won his matches in straight falls he has been obliged to step at a furious pace to win after being tossed by opponents.

STANLEY STASIAK, Toots Mondt, Stanislaus Zbyszko and Jim Londos are among those who have passed Lewis' shoulders to the mat during the past six months. In several matches Lewis has knocked out his opponents, but he has been getting the worst of things.

It is apparent that the Strangler is going back. Perhaps Stasiak will be the one to conquer the title holder.

It will be the second meeting between Lewis and Stasiak. At the Arena recently, Stasiak defeated Lewis, only to be deprived of victory by Sam Avery of St. Joseph, Mo., Lewis' hand-picked referee. Stasiak scored the only fall of the match. He had Lewis in a weakened condition when the latter resorted to the strangle hold. The Polish champion then did some rough work and was disqualified. Stasiak should only have been credited with a fall on fall.

Fouls will not be considered tomorrow night, according to Matchmaker Paul Bowser. To win a wrestler will have to pin his opponent's shoulders to the canvas twice.

LEONE LABRIOLA, the Italian heavyweight sensation, will oppose Bull Young of New York in the semi-final, which will also be to a finish.

WEE WILLIE WOODS, Scotch flyweight champion, will train at Martin Burke's health farm at Wamesit for his ten-round bout with Pancho Villa, world's flyweight champion, which will be staged by the Armory A. A. at Mechanics Building on the evening of July 8. Woods proved his worth when he defeated Elky Clark, British flyweight champion, in fifteen and twenty-round bouts, and does not believe he has anything to fear from the colorful Villa.

THERE have been some weird decisions handed out in Providence recently. Johnny Sheppard of Western was given out of the twelve rounds in his bout with Young Montreal last week, yet the latter was awarded the decision. The Montreal of three years ago could have given Sheppard a hard battle, but this does not hold true of the Montreal of today. The Providence bantamweight has gone back a great deal.

JOHNNY WILSON, former world's middleweight champion, says that after he has got himself into the best of condition he will look Malone in an outdoor show in this city. The Wilson-Malone match which was on for several years. Malone's recent poor showing against Frank Moody has not injured the attraction as the fans figure the St. Paul boxer merely had an "off" night. Boxers, like big league pitchers and star track men, have their good and bad days.

• • •

ALTHOUGH deluged with offers from all parts of the country for the services of Jack Sharkey, conqueror of Floyd Johnson, Manager Johnny Buckley says he would like to see the Roxbury sensation by engaging in a couple of hard fights that he will be prepared to make his next start in Boston. "Braves Field has a seating capacity of 40,000," said Buckley, "and that should be sufficient space to accommodate those who wish to see the next heavyweight champion of the world in action. In real money, the total of the offers for Sharkey's services received since the Johnson bout have already passed $100,000. Such is the fame of a puncher."

Jack Conway Picks Shevlin to Win Over Doyle

Jack Conway who holds the world's record for picking winners comes to bat with the middle leg on the Eddie Shevlin-Paul Doyle bout at Lynn tonight:

"I am picking Eddie Shevlin to win over Paul Doyle," says Jack, "it should be a fast, rugged bout replete with plenty of clean, hard punching. Doyle is one of the best right hand workers in the welterweight division Shevlin will require all of his amazing skill to win."

Jack has picked 80 winners out of a possible 92 this year.

MANCHESTER LOSES; PROTESTS VICTORY

Fitchburg, June 30.—Fitchburg I. fouled Manchester after an hour's climb in a Central League contest. Manchester protested the game on account of the alleged illegal delivery of King Bader, who worked six innings for Fitchburg.

PENN HAS STAR PITCHER FOR NEXT SEASON

Philadelphia, June 30.—Zip Long University of Pennsylvania sophomore pitcher, who made a wonderful record for the Red and Blue this season, is regarded as another Walter Hunsinger.

Long established a strike-out reputation while a member of the Episcopal Academy nine before entering the university. He started his varsity career as a winner against Lehigh. He has continued right down the line with a consecutive record of eight victories, including two conquests each of Yale and Columbia.

His record of games won follows: April 16, Lehigh, 6—2; April 26, Yale, 12—8; May 3, Yale, 8—6 May 10, Williams 8—2; May 17, Brown, 6—3; May 30, Columbia, 6—3, June 4 Columbia 7—3; June 7, Colgate, 3—2.

Long has worked in other games, but was not credited any victories or charged defeats. He started the Navy game on Franklin Field, which was called at the end of the seventh inning with the score tied 2 to 2. Zip is a right-hander with a good chance of pace and has been striking out six or eight men in almost every game.

Coach Carlisle looks upon Long as his hurling ace for next year. Rohrer will be graduated. Jack Williams, the 200-pound right-hander, who also was at Episcopal Academy before coming to Penn, will be available next year. Wildness was his principal fault last season and early this year, but the big fellow seems to be getting better control all the time. He has as much stuff as any man on the squad, but simply lacks confidence.

EDDIE SHEVLIN AND DOYLE BATTLE

$75,000 PLAYER PROVES TO BE FAILURE

The matching of Paul Doyle and Eddie Shevlin for the feature bout at the General Electric Field, West Lynn, tonight, has certainly made a great hit with the fight fans of Lynn and surrounding cities and towns as these two stars are the most popular glove men that have appeared in the Shoe City.

Doyle and Shevlin have bored in Lynn several times and were never defeated there, and when it was announced that they would face each other tonight great interest was shown in the bout.

Doyle is one of the few welterweights in the country who has ever knocked Shevlin down for the count. During their bout at Portland, Me., Doyle knocked Shevlin down for the count in the second round and in the third round he hit the Dartmouth professor a vicious right-hander under the heart, breaking three of Shevlin's ribs.

They met again later at Fenway Park. Shevlin was awarded the decision after a great battle that was close all the way.

It is the most popular match that the Lynn club has ever staged and if good weather conditions prevail it is estimated that a record crowd will witness the battle.

The following preliminary card will usher in the main event:

Six rounds—Johnny Vacca, Newton, vs. Mike Melinsky, Lawrence; eight rounds, Bunch O'Neil, Lynn, vs. Jack O'Brien, Lawrence, eight rounds. Tommy Harrington, Worcester, vs. Babe Adams, Lawrence.

ARLINGTON RIFLE CLUB TO HOLD SHOOT

The Arlington Rifle Club will stage a holiday shoot over the club range, at the Munroe Farm, on Lowell street, Lexington, on Independence Day. There will be several events, with prizes for the winners in each. Rifles will be furnished those who desire to enter, the shoot being an open one.

The estate Connie Mack, some time ago leased to David Harum because of his shrewd sales purchases and trades of ball players, is ready to admit that his star is souring.

Connie has always made it a business to develop youngsters. When frenzied finance crept into baseball and other clubs were paying out enormous amounts in six figures for minor leaguers few thought Connie Mack would loosen up the bankroll. But he did.

Connie paid $75,000 to the Portland Club of the Pacific Coast League in 1922 for Sammy Hale, the third baseman.

Today Hale is ready to re-enter the minor league fold. He has failed to make the grade.

Hale's name is a common one. A star in Class AA circles, he's a bust in the big show. Hughey Jennings tried out Hale with the Tigers in 1923 and the little fellow failed to stay up.

Two Olympic Stars Lost to U. S. Team

Leroy Brown

Paris, June 30 (A.P.) The American Olympic track and field team, already crippled by a series of minor mishaps since its departure from the United States, faced its most serious loss so far today when Leroy T. Brown, New York A. C., and H. M. Osborn, Illinois A. C., the high jumping aces, counted on for a clean-up in this event, were taken to the Neuilly Hospital for treatment. Brown is suffering from an injury to a tendon in the leg and Osborn from strained muscles in the back.

In the Clouds

DRAWN BY WALT VAN ARSDALE

Copyright, 1926, by Hall Features Syndicate, Inc.

WHO wants to stay down on earth when up here in the clouds are the cool sweet air and peaceful quiet and a glimpse of Paradise itself? Those who scoff at the romance and poetry of life have never tasted among the clouds such perfect delight as comes in a world of dreams and fantasy. Those who keep their eyes forever glued to the ground below and never look up—up—up—at the sky above! In the blue of the sea, they can only see the pebbles and sand at the water's bottom and never a reflection of the clouds of Heaven. And the secret of it all is, they've never known Love!—Walt Van Arsdale.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

To Wear at Graduation

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Please tell me if it would be proper for a young man of eighteen to wear a long collar and a black bow tie with a suit of dark blue ... material for a graduation evening.

A. R.

YES.

Thanking an Escort

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When a boy brings a girl home from a party or reception, but did not leave her there, should the girl thank him?

When introducing a gentleman to parents or relatives should you introduce him as "Charles Blank" or Mr. Blank?

You should not say, "Charles Blank" but should say, "Mr. Blank" or "Mr. Charles Blank."

Eating a Fruit Salad

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you be so kind as to advise me the correct way to eat a fruit salad when it is served in a bowl and when an extra plate and implements are placed alongside the bowl?

A. M.

The correct way is to put a portion of the salad on your plate and eat the salad from the plate. It is not the correct way to put a heaping of the salad on the plate and eat it that way. Which is correct? BABE.

Both suggestion is correct because more convenient. Usually a fork as well as the tablespoon is served with the salad for use in serving the salad from the bowl to the plate.

CHICKIE

Seething Life of a Lovely Boston Girl of This Strange Today

By ELENORE MEHERIN

"IT is alleged to have died the same evening in the sanitarium of Dr Robert Emerson, who attended the mother at the birth, Mrs. Clayton, Ricks said, then hurriedly left for her home in Boston, leaving funeral arrangements with Dr. Emerson.

He is said to have signed the death certificate. Then hysterics has also been summoned to appear before the coroner's jury.

"Added mystery, Ricks declares, is the fact that Mrs. Clayton was known as Miss Helena Bryce in Portsmouth, where she stopped at a fashionable hotel for several days at a time prior to the birth of the infant. Search for John Clayton has been fruitless.

"No one by the name of Mrs. John Clayton is known at the residence she gave as her address, which Jonathan Dane will be no doubt quicker and once a resident of the district, has his home. Bryce refused to discuss the connection of his daughter, Miss Helena Bryce, with the—"

She read it again. Madness—all once Jonathan might great ace lifting her: "Brave Chickie girl—brave—"

Like a Doom

Then she was lying on a bed and shades were drawn—lying quietly as one in a coffin. Soon they would come and pull the cover—oh the peace of that—how she would smile—rest then . . .

She stared at the curtains—the new ponzee curtains Jennie had made, being so glad to have her home again; wanting to surprise her—

Then Jennie came in with a tray—ke all those festive Sunday mornings. But Jennie didn't look at her, he said gently: "Chickie dear—rink this—you must be strong—"

Chickie said: "Oh, mother—the look of sorrow on the mother—

"No dear why, I'm all right—rink it—you must be strong—"

Chickie turned her face against e pillow from—sudden "Drink dear—"

"Oh—if I could die—and I will, mother—I will—"

"No here—"

"You'd be glad—oh, if you know—" s pushed the cup away—she closed s hands on her face—

In and there were voices again—the ane was filled with voices. Jennie came back to the room. "Get ready, dear." Like a sentence to doom—as though Chickie were in the death chamber and it was her mother—no other than her mother—who came and drew the black cap down—She stood, holding to the bureau—trying to straighten her hair—trying to get a glove that lay directly before her—

Then she listened to the voices and a shock went through her. For the voice was saying: "Don't let her worry—it will be all right. We'll see to that—"

She must be raving—she must have lost her mind. For she fancied the voice was Jake's. He was talking to her father—and Jonathan Dane and another voice—a third voice—

A step. Light, then—not quick about her. Oh, she remembered now—it was Jake. Thank God—her right mother was no longer confident—

Jake Appears

"Don't be afraid, Chickie, my dear. I don't want to—but I—But you won't be crushed by this. Too bad I came to tell you something—tell you that it will be all right. I saw Dr. Emerson—know him well. Telephone him now. I saw him—

"Oh, mother!" said Chickie belonging you into this. Case of professional jealousy. Rick is the coroner—never loses a chance to block the doctor. You see, the doctor is a new comer and has stolen all his thunder. He a small town feud. They've brought you into that—"

Though she wouldn't look at him, knew she couldn't—she saw her face to the coming of Jake. She took her in that was a comfort. It was warm to the touch. He said: Mr. Dane—the chauffeur—was waiting. Walk out of this—to me, dear. That—why I came. You mustn't wait to talk about. Look ahead—don't look back. I'll be—and a lawyer—brilliant fellow. I've asked him to meet you there. Do as he says, Chickie. Answer as he tells you. I will be all right—

Your friends won't blame—

She knew that the black, flashing eyes were full of sorrow—they went kindly over her blanched, still face. He pressed her hands—he lowered his head and kissed them. He said, softly: "They won't hurt you—we won't let them do that—"

He was gone.

Jonathan came — squared his giant's form. He took her arm—he even smiled.

She said—with her lips mere—forth: "Tricks not coming of Jonathan—"

"Would I let you go alone? Do you think that, Chickie girl—your old dad—"

So they went.

So many times Chickie had primed at her face in the mirror, and flushing to find herself so radiant had gone singing through the hall. But Jennie came with such a grim grin. Jennie was so shy and pleased so proud of this, that Chickie—Oh, what could she find just for the tenderness. Wondrous to have that arm linked around and feel with a pressure like this—loving them—

Chickie knew her mother's thought, read it well.

A Secret Wound

And today, pulling a veil over her hat, she paused. Oh, shame is hard to take; hard to bend a head that has held itself high. Still it was. That was the thing that hurt; that went into Chickie's lifeless heart and there remained. Unto death—

She stood beside her mother and let an outgrieved—didn't even give her hand. Just waited while the gray and whitened lips.

Slow, heavy tears ran to Jennie's chin. Her hand, soft now, but thin, crept to Chickie's shoulder, brought Chickie's head down. It was like sobbing the way she said: "Ah—oh—Chickie, dear—"

Good-bye—well, good-bye, mother—

Chickie begged: "Oh, mother, don't—" and dropped the veil about her face.

Then Jennie stood and stood half in the door and didn't wait till they were gone but closed it soft—Could it soften the blow? Nothing to hide and cannot bear to. Early morning sun. Jennie felt a new shame for her, the bright and pulsy one—

And Chickie knew it—the pang went deep like a blade turning and turning in a secret wound.

When she let herself all huddle down in the corner of the great automobile. Jonathan patted her hands. He sat erect and said no word. No one broke a—

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

SO I was left to smile and think over my attempt to fight Rosa with her own weapons. After a short while my two companions returned. Lorraine was scolding. Gem presents Man velo had a look of having satisfied himself that he was a grown man and a "regular fellow."

Ann Lisle

When we met in the Thurlow library to go in to dinner, I felt a shock as the butler announced.

Then Ralph strode in, well-groomed, debonair, as boyish in his way as young Manuelo himself. And with a poise and force which are so fine a part of him, I didn't need to see Lorraine's look of satisfaction to realize that if there was plotting and arranging to be done, the beautiful Mrs. Thurlow was bound to manage her share of it.

"Isn't this a jolly surprise?" asked Lorraine Thurlow with particular stress when Ralph Lacy had been introduced to Manuelo Orua and the first greetings were over.

"It is!" smiled Ralph straight into my eyes.

"All of that," I agreed, conscious that young Manuelo was actually simpering and making it evident that he recalled Rosa Cordova's sweeping assertion that I tolerated Jim's interest in the Ruth Gregory statue because he permitted me "to make the handsome Rafaello so many appointments."

Hardly were we seated at the perfectly appointed table when young Orua leaned over and said to me, with an amused camaraderie I'd never had from him before:

"This Senor Lacy is devoted even to the friends of Mrs. White Lilac, not?"

"Who wouldn't be devoted to Mrs. Thurlow?" I parried in a subdued confidential tone. "She is one of the most beautiful women I've ever seen, and as charming as she is lovely to look at. Besides, she comes from one of the oldest and best families, and married into another still more so to—that's possible. You folks who are descended from Spanish grandees know whether or not blood counts, do you not?"

Manuelo smiled complacently. I realized I'd scored by referring to his pride of blood.

"Isn't this a charming home? I asked of Manuelo. "In a quiet way it is said to be one of the most beautiful in New York. And I've an idea that you're an ardent disciple of every cult of beauty."

Manuelo removed his gaze from the unconscious—or seemingly unconscious—Lorraine and turned to me with something like a twinkle in his eyes. He even made a mocking bow.

"All beauty I like, yes," he said. "And what is—all the thorough bred makes me most pleased."

Then his eyes [illegible] mine and in a flash I [illegible] Rosa had unbounded pride in that I was a little upstart, whose social position depended on the good fortune that had enabled her to marry into the Harrison family.

"I like thoroughbreds as well as you do." I smiled without loosing my poise, thank goodness. "But in this melting pot of a new country of ours the real aristocracy is of the people [illegible] in the making. It's only to [illegible] that a family [illegible] established as Lorraine Thurlow has money and dignity, and brains [illegible] and clean [illegible] grow that she and [illegible]

"That she and her brother shall make to have it?" interrupted Manuelo suavely.

ABOUT YOUR BEAUTY

BEAUTIES OF ALL AGES TESTIFY TO THE VALUE OF STRAWBERRIES

By Maria Jeritza,

Famous Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.

EACH season brings its own beauty needs and it is equally true that each season brings its own peculiarly refreshing and suitable beauty aids.

For instance, Spring and early Summer with their gifts of sun-sunshine cause a desire for thirst-quenching fruits. We also want something new and something dainty in the line of food, for the appetite is less gross than in colder weather.

How seasonable then is the strawberry, cooling and refreshing and with a piquant flavor that exactly satisfies a slightly capricious warm weather appetite.

It seems to me that some English poet—whose name I can't recall—has associated roses, beautiful women and strawberries together as Nature's most exquisite products each in its own way. Certainly, strawberries deserves even this high place of honor in the list of natural products that approach perfection.

"Berries of all kinds," says an eminent physician, "whether served fresh or cooked, are a delicious and wholesome food. They are more easily digested than most foodstuffs. Berries of all kinds are rich in natural sugar and therefore make a useful addition to the dietary during the heat of the year.

What could be more delicious than a light hot-weather lunch consisting of a sandwich of thin gluten bread spread with a leaf of lettuce and a cream cheese and nut mixture, with a cup of tea or chocolate and for dessert, fresh strawberries and thick cream.

Such a luncheon will prove beneficial not only because it is wholesome and nourishing, but because it is attractive and appetizing food of which you will partake with an appetite. And enjoyment of food is the surest aid to digestion, hence to beauty of skin and coloring.

All that applies to strawberries also applies to other seasonable berries in greater or less degree. Huckleberries, raspberries, gooseberries, currants, loganberries and elderberries are healthful and delicious, whether used fresh and uncooked, or in the form of cooling drinks, pies and shortcakes. And they are not fattening to any extent unless they are eaten with a great deal of cream or sugar.

TODAY

savage fighting was due to the fact that not one man made any open defence of the Klan. If they had come, with any support from the floor, there would have been fighting, and plenty of it.

THEN, there was a nice funeral, much appreciated. The good old League of Nations, having seen her best days, was gently laid away to rest. On her tombstone you read, "Public referendum." Mr. Baker made a good fight, and the dear ladies, sweet things, that believe you can make a peaceful world to order, as you make a cherry pie, cheered a pretty soprano when the League was passed.

But the league is dead, and, in the language of Swinburne, "dead ladies come back never." You won't hear much more about that.

IT is lucky for the Democrats. One big, religious fight is as much of a fight as any one party ought to carry.

The name of the Klan is not mentioned in the platform. But it was so thoroughly named and cursed and kicked around in convention speeches that the platform might as well have named it 47 times.

Nobody in New York knows what the Klan is, how many klansmen there are, or how sensitive they feel about being called out of their name, and IN it. But if they are numerous and sentitive about being called worse than Judas Iscariot, this is to be a lively election.

THE savage hatred of the Klan openly expressed by most of the Democratic speakers, and the contempt or weak apology expressed by others, certainly will not please any high spirited Kleagle.

Poor Champ Clark's hound, you may remember, got a fearful "kicking around." Many Democrats sang about it, for a while.

Well, friends, the kicking around that the Klan got in this convention makes the Champ Clark dog incident seem trivial.

IF the Democrats choose a candidate that represents the Klan in any way, HE IS BURIED DEEP IN ADVANCE, if that howling convention means anything.

If the convention names a man that can only whisper to the Klan, "Say I did not kick you so very hard that night," then he will not have much of a chance.

Anyhow, the big crowd enjoyed the kicking process while it lasted. Many a Democrat, this morning, is wondering about the actual cash value of the job that is promised him IF. Here he is advised NOT to rely on it for a living.

THE man that stood out in the convention was William J. Bryan. He really is a man, not afraid of anything or anybody, and afraid of howling politicians less than of anything else.

McAdoo still has most votes. He is probably the only man that could fight his way against the religious fight that is coming in this campaign. There will be many meetings that will NOT have ten policemen in each aisle and that will make a difference.

McAdoo's LABOR FOLLOWING, having nothing to do with any religious quarrel, might pull him through.

As for other candidates, if they enjoy merely running, let them get the nomination, if they can.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

RENTS are getting so high and lumber is resting so much that hundreds of people are already beginning to build their homes in trees.

ONE fellow said that if a pine tree was good enough for his ancestors it was good enough for him.

OUR forefathers took this country away from the Indians and now we're going to take the trees away from the birds.

IT won't be long before blue jays, sparrows and robins will have a hard time finding a place to sit down.

CAN you imagine a quail going home to his nest and discovering that a man with a wife and three kids have moved in?

THE quail won't dare to object or he'll find himself lying on a piece of toast.

ONE fellow built himself a cottage in a maple tree just so that he could get plenty of syrup for his pancakes in the morning.

THERE'S nothing like owning a bungalow with hot and cold running syrup in every room.

AS soon as this plan of living becomes popular, rent hogs will probably buy up all the forests.

WELL, have to pay sixty-five or seventy dollars a month for an unfurnished oak tree.

IF you don't want a whole tree to yourself they'll rent you a branch for fifteen bucks.

A GUY with an elm tree would have a hard time keeping roomers.

THEY'D just about get upstairs when they'd slide down to the basement again.

ONE fellow who lives in a cypress said he got up seventeen times in the night because somebody was knocking at the front door. It took him two weeks to find out that it was a woodpecker.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. F. X. Mahoney
Boston Health Commission

THE average home has a thermometer hanging outside the kitchen door. The place for the thermometer is indoors, in the living room.

Nature controls the heat outdoors and all the thermometers won't change it one fraction of a degree, but the temperature of the home where you live may easily be controlled and should be controlled if you are to enjoy good health.

Dr. Mahoney

A temperature of from 68 to 70 should be maintained in the home. Instead of that the temperature in the average home is nearer 80. Microbes and other organisms multiply very rapidly at a temperature of 80 degrees while the radiant heat tends to consume the oxygen in the air that is so badly needed by the persons who must occupy the house.

Burn less fuel during the months when you have the furnace going, and keep the windows open a part of the time. At any rate keep the temperature at 70 and you will enjoy better health.

A hygrometer, an inexpensive instrument which tells you the moisture content or humidity of the air, is another instrument that should be found in the home. Excess moisture is bad for the home just as dryness should be avoided. The normal point for the hygrometer to register is 60. If it is above that point more heat is required to take up the excess moisture and make the room comfortable.

If the air is too dry, open the windows and force in plenty of fresh air. Potted plants are also excellent to keep the humidity of the living room about right.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

I am going camping for the greater part of the summer. Do you think I ought to have anti-typhoid inoculation? E. F. K.

Preventive inoculation against typhoid fever is almost an essential to safety and such vaccination would tend to reassure you if you plan to spend your vacation as you indicate. I think you will do well to give the matter immediate consideration.

My child sleeps with his mouth open and snores very badly. Do you think he has adenoids? W. F. D.

The symptoms which you mention would lead me to suspect that your child has adenoids. I would advise you to consult your physician as to the advisability of having them removed. They have been duly established as the cause of malnutrition, defective development and disease and by removal of their position and texture afford excellent breeding places for germs of all kinds.

I have been a sufferer from indigestion for a couple of years. Have been to a couple of doctors without relief. Can you suggest a remedy for this?

MRS. E. W. C., East Boston.

Indigestion is usually a symptom of some disease of the stomach or intestines. I would advise that you go to the out patient department of the Boston City Hospital and possibly have an X-Ray examination and the proper treatment prescribed.

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Business sentiment and prospects are improving.

What has been happening? Briefly:

First in importance, wheat and corn and oats have all improved in price most substantially within the last week, touching new heights for the year. This strengthens America's condition where it needed strengthening most urgently.

• • •

Cotton has continued to command prices profitably for growers, with all indications pointing to satisfactory quotations for the new crop.

The average price of representative stocks on the New York Stock Exchange has reached a new level for the year. Both industrial and railway issues have figured in the advance.

Bonds, too, have climbed to new ground. Grains have been made alike by foreign government bonds, our own Liberties and by railroad and industrial varieties.

Money rates have declined to levels rarely experienced even in pre-war times. There are more idle funds than can be put out from day-to-day at 2 per cent. Bankers' acceptances are down to 2 per cent.; loans secured by stock exchange collateral are available at 3 per cent., or less, and there is already talk of another reduction in the local Federal Reserve Bank rate to 3 per cent., the last cut having failed to stimulate rediscount.

• • •

The superabundance of cheap money here had induced leading American bankers to apply for a share of the $50,000,000 Hungarian government loan to be issued within a day or two. Confidence is expressed that the local offering of some $10,000,000 will be readily absorbed in view of the measures taken to insure the safety of the obligation and the very high interest yield. Prospects for floating here the large German loan embodied in the Dawes plan are regarded by international bankers as having greatly improved, and the present expectation is that the way will have been paved for this financing by Fall.

Steel authorities declare that a turn for the better is at hand.

Automobile manufacturers are preparing to increase operations within the next ten days—the Studebaker corporation, it is reported, will add 1,200 employes on July 7 and 2,000 more later in the month.

Copper is a shade better in price, with demand broad-scaled.

Tin is also higher.

Sugar has been doing a trifle better.

Of course, political outlooks can change overnight. The spectacular rise in grain prices may conceivably suffer a relapse. Developments in the building industry probably will be less exuberant. The European program may not develop according to the hoped-for schedule. In short, always when discussing the future, there must necessarily be "ifs" and "buts."

• • •

It can be said definitely, however, that a more cheerful view is now taken of business prospects.

PRICES MIXED IN NEW YORK MARKET

Prices were mixed and the tone rather reactionary, though most price changes were small in trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Woolworth was up more than 2 to a new 1924 high. Kinney rose over 3. At the same time there were point or better advances for Associated Oil, Kresge, Marland and May Stores.

Short sellers located several vulnerable spots. Daniel Boone Woolen Mills tumbled 7 points to 17, the year's lowest figure.

Pivotal industrials and low-priced rail shares were offered freely and recessions of 1 to 2 points from last week's close were common among active issues. Yellow Cab Manufacturing declined 3 points.

American Radiator, however, developed independent strength, rising 3 points, with Maracaibo and other low-priced oils advancing briskly.

In Boston Stock Exchange transactions, Pacific Mills was off a point at 75, a new low for the year, prior to declaration of regular 1½ per cent. quarterly dividend. American Brick was up ⅝ to a new high since listing.

There were point or better gains for Boston Elevated 2d pfd, Copper Range and Mexican Investment.

U. S. Smelting was up over 2 points. Eastern Mass. St. Ry. adjustment stock was off nearly 2.

REPLIES TO INVESTORS

SCOVILL MFG.

To S. L. L.—Scovill Manufacturing Co., reported for 1923 net earnings after depreciation, taxes and other charges of $3,167,761, equal to $17.89 per share on the 177,000 shares of stock outstanding. This compared with net earnings of $989,408 in 1922, equal to $6.59 per share on the 150,000 shares of stock outstanding at the end of that year, or $19.80 on the 50,000 shares which were actually outstanding during most of the year, the company having paid a 200 per cent. stock dividend.

The earnings for 1923 include profits of the Oakville Co. and American Pin Co., of Waterbury, Ct., which were purchased on Dec. 28 last by the Scovill Manufacturing Co. The assets of these two companies were paid for by the issue of 27,000 shares of Scovill Manufacturing stock, plus an issue of $300,000 five-year 5 per cent. gold debentures.

To K. D. E.—Simmons Co. reports net profit of $2,413,402 after expenses and federal tax for 1923, equal, after preferred dividends to $2.23 a share on 876,540 shares, no-par common, against $2,340,166, or $2.13, on common in 1922.

SPECULATOR.

To P. C. D.—Cupidity leads the speculator to assume as large a risk as his broker will permit him to take on the "margin" that he can command.

Confidence grows with success, leading him to act with the greatest boldness at what is in fact the time of greatest danger. Fear grows with loss, leading him to abandon his position (assuming that his margin has not been previously exhausted) at what is really the time of greatest safety.

One of the soundest axioms with regard to speculation is to the effect that the safety in the price level varies inversely to the general confidence ruling therein.

This is the reason why there is always plenty of demand for stocks at the "top" and a plentiful supply at the "bottom."

Whatever success the professional speculator obtains he obtains mainly because he knows these principles and acts accordingly.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC.

To I. I. I.—Southern Pacific's 10-year record of gross revenues, balance after taxes and surplus after charges reveals good increases over the period and the ability to cover a higher dividend while leaving substantial surplus to carry to development of the property.

Year	Gross revenues	Surplus aft charges	Earn a share

xYear ended June 30. aEstimated.

Julius Kruttschnitt, chairman of the Southern Pacific executive committee, gave in December his theory of dividend paying, explaining he did not believe all income should be distributed to stockholders, an ideal division being 50 per cent. to dividends and 50 per cent, for additions and betterments.

"Serving a new and comparatively undeveloped country, the Pacific Coast, where the larger part of its gross revenue originates, Southern Pacific must make the ordinary run of additions and betterments to the property out of earnings," he said.

Southern Pacific, however, has unusually extensive additions planned and under construction, particularly the Southern Pacific of Mexico, which would hardly come under "the ordinary run of additions." If additional share capital were to be raised it would probably not be attempted with the company's stock on a 6 per cent. basis. Capital stock of Southern Pacific and proprietary companies is $691,212,000, and debt $585,739,000, a 6 to 5 ratio and a well-balanced one.

If the board should be more liberally inclined, the increase would be the first change in the dividend policy since 1907. That year 5¼ per cent. was paid and the year before, when dividends were initiated 2½ per cent.

ST. JOSEPH LEAD.

To D. E. E.—St. Joseph Lead Company for 1923 reports total income of $6,654,318 after depreciation reserves, against $5,972,333 in 1922. After providing reserves for depletion of mines, Federal taxes and other accounts, there was reported net income of $4,379,854. This was equal to $2.32 a share earned on the $15,494,126 stock of $10 a share par value outstanding. In 1922 the company reported net income of $3,994,325, equal to $2.57 a share.

After payment of $2,488,381 cash dividends last year the company reported a surplus of $1,891,473, against a surplus of $1,987,119 after dividends in 1922.

President Wilcox Very Optimistic on Business

President George H. Wilcox of International Silver Company, which has factories at Meriden, Wallingford, Waterbury, Bridgeport, Derby and Norwich, Ct., tells the financial editor of the Boston American:

"It will not require fifty words for us to express our opinion as to the business outlook for the remainder of the year. Unless something unforeseen happens that we cannot possibly anticipate, we cannot help believing that few of us will be greatly disappointed at the business we will have after August 1.

"We are very optimistic as to the immediate future."

Economy Is Independence

The Money That You Save Now Means Leisure in the Future—It Means the Chance Later to Do Things More Important Than Making Money

The hardest thing in the world is self-control. And the saving of money means the exercise of self-control in all directions at once. That is what makes saving so hard for most of us.

If you are trying to save, you must concentrate your will power on that.

You say very often that it is not worth while. Life is short, it is as well to enjoy life now.

But if you fail to show will power in your youth, if you fail now to make the necessary effort to gain independence, later on you will find, when it is too late, that life is long and rather dreary when you combine old age with poverty, a tired mind with dependence and the necessity of obeying someone else's orders.

This both women and men should remember.

Saving is a habit like any other habit. It is hard at first and ultimately becomes not only easy but mechanical.

The hard work is the practising of self-denial at first. It is hard, but no harder than getting out of bed early, and most of us have to learn that.

Learn not to be forever yearning for things you don't need.

Learn to fix your mind on the future instead of on the immediate and foolish present.

Ignore the opinions of others. They are glad enough to see you spend your money now. But where will they be when your money is gone and your ability to earn money with it?

They will be following someone else who is learning the spendthrift's hard lesson of practical experience.

If you saw a traveler in Africa scattering quinine pills right and left on his way through the fever jungle, you would be amazed at him.

You would say to him:

"That precious medicine alone stands between you and the fevers that infest this land.

"Don't squander the one thing that will carry you safely to your journey's end."

But you, who throw away your money and your future independence as you go through life, are every bit as foolish as such a traveler would be, throwing away his quinine.

Your money is the only thing that can keep you independent. It alone can save you from the worst fever of modern life—poverty, dependence, the humiliation of trying in old age and under adverse conditions to make up for the folly of youth.

Deny yourself now. Make the effort of will that is necessary and save yourself suffering and humiliation in the future.

Every man who has ever saved anything will tell you this, and do not doubt that it is true:

The hardest money to save IS THE FIRST MONEY. Once you have got your start, the rest is easy. The first hundred dollars, the first thousand dollars, come very hard. After that it is plain sailing. You have the encouragement of a first success, and you have become a collector.

In every man there exists the passion for collecting. Some collect stamps, some collect coins, or old pictures, or tear jugs from Japan, or other frivolities.

If you want a chance to succeed, and do your best work independently of others, be a COLLECTOR OF MONEY.

Remember that thousands of men miss their chance in life BECAUSE THEY HAVE NOTHING SAVED UP.

They are running a constant race with bills, with obligations.

They dare not stop; they are like men on a treadmill. If they were but a little ahead, they could seize the chance that they see and take one of the many short cuts to fortune.

But each day's work must be done to meet that day's expenses, and the offered chance is not taken.

Get yourself free by making yourself independent and gaining control of your own time.

"The truth shall make you free," says St. John. He spoke of spiritual freedom.

Material freedom requires the independence of action that comes from saving.

Begin saving now. PUT YOUR MONEY INTO SAFE AND SURE BONDS THAT THE GOVERNMENT OFFERS YOU.

Once get a start, and you will go ahead and be glad ever after that you took the trouble to read this.

Poor Finance, Militarism

War Is Now Dangerous

Military ambition and financial greed have been responsible for great wars. Militarism and finance ought to do serious thinking, seeing the former Kaiser exiled in Holland and reading of the meeting of Herriot, the Socialist Prime Minister of France, and MacDonald, the Labor-Socialist Prime Minister of England, to decide Europe's destiny.

No war ever made as many violent changes as the last great war. Austria whittled down to a little province, her royalty driven out, the German Emperor kicked out, the Russian Emperor murdered, Italy in the hands of a dictator, Spain managed by an imitation dictator, and now the long line of Gladstone, Palmerston, Disraeli, Salisbury, making room in England for the workman, MacDonald. And socialism, in its various forms, the ruling power in Europe.

War has been a blessing to the human race. Kings, to get money, have gradually and grudgingly made concessions to the classes below. Now the bottom of the heap, labor, in France and England, takes the helm.

Militarism and finance perhaps will think hard before starting the next big war.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS

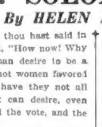
By HELEN ROWLAND

MY Daughter, thou hast said in thine heart, "How now! Why should any woman desire to be a MAN? For are not women fewer of heaven, and have they not all that their heart can desire, even bobbed hair, and the vote, and the swagger-stick?"

Yea, verily.

Yet, lo, what woman hath ever felt as clean and right-eous as a man APPEARETH after his cool shower and a fresh shave?

Go to! How comforting to the soul, to care not whether thy nose is white or red or shiny, and to take no heed lest thy hair cometh out of curl!



Helen Rowland

How soluc ing to feel that when thou slippest from the straight and narrow way it is not thine own responsibility! And to believe that thy morals and thy conscience are in thy wife's keeping!

How sweet to let all life's little duties and worries slip from thy shoulders as water off a permanent wave! How exhilarating to escape the writing of "duty letters," and the gathering up of thy laundry, and the thought of what thou shalt have for dinner or where-with thou shalt be clothed!

How comforting to face thy fifteth birthday without fear and shuddering, and to know that age cannot wither nor custom stale thy fascination for the opposite sex! And that so long as thou hast three wisps of hair to cover thy forehead, thou shalt be irresistible!

How gratifying to know that when thou openeth thy mouth to speak, thy words shall not fall upon deaf ears, but shall be taken seriously!

How cheering to know that whatsoever thou doest, thou shalt be accounted a "good man," so long as thou keepest out of jail.

How refreshing to know that thy coat is as good this year as it was last year, and that thy hat shall be as modish next season as it is this season, and thy spirit shall never be tormented by the changing styles! Yea, even that thou art good enough "as is"!

How solacing to have faith that if thy WIFE will but do thy Sunday worshipping, whilst thou departest for the golf links, thou shalt at last enter into the kingdom of heaven upon HER Ticket.

Verily, verily, to be a woman is no crime—but to be a man is still a blessing and a comfort.

For women may have their "rights," but men still hold jealously to the privileges and the comforts and the joys of earth.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

Out beside the singing river when the twilight mists descend, where the shadows dance and quiver and the willows' branches bend, there are peace and gladness waiting for the tryst that I shall keep when the night comes, hesitating, and the birds have gone to sleep. All day long the river flowing where the sun and shadows lie, laughs at daisies golden, glowing, laughs and mirrors back the sky. And it whispers to the willows as they trail their branches green in its gentle, mimic billows where there sleeps an emerald sheen. In the current shy trout gliding seems but darker shadows there, and they sound the shallows, hiding from the sunlight's golden glare. Friendly songs all day it's singing to the birds that pass along, lark and linnet, swiftly winging as they answer song with song. Such a merry, care-free river, gliding swiftly on its way; but when twilight shadows quiver, then the laughter dies away. Then another note keeps ringing in the river's lovely song, for at night the stream is singing of a journey lone and long; of the unknown way it's wending past the meadow land and lea, of its journey, never ending, till it greets the distant sea. I would hear its plaintive calling, so I wait to keep my tryst when the shades of night are falling and the valley's veiled in mist. When the stars in heaven dwelling, glimmer brightly far above, I would hear the river telling of the sea, its waiting love.

Worried Mother's Plea

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a young girl twenty years old and I just lost my husband. I have a little baby one month old and a little girl three years old and I have no clothes for them. I have to stay home to take care of my children, so cannot work. I need clothing myself, size 38. I am a very worried mother.

MRS. E. C. 4.

Odds and Ends For Mother

Editor Helping Hand:

I am packing a box full of "odds and ends" that may be useful to some mother of a large family who can make over things for the little ones. It must be some one who can call or send for the box, as I am in poor circumstances myself through much illness. Success to you in your work. A WIDOWED MOTHER.

Thank you for the good wishes and the offer of what you have. Mrs. L. N., can make over and lives fairly near you, so we have asked her to call.

For Boy of 12

Editor Helping Hand:

Will you kindly send me the name of some deserving person who could use a boy's suit to fit a boy of 12 or 13 years old—jacket and two good pairs of trousers. Will send by parcel post or they may call. You are doing a wonderful work, and this makes three suits I have given. Wish it were more.

MRS. J. L. P.

Thank you. It is you and those like you who are doing the wonderful work. You are being sent the address of Mrs. J. O., the mother of six boys.

Needs Clothes Badly

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a girl of seventeen and all I have to wear is a sweater, dress and a Winter coat. I am out of work and I live with my sister, and it is hard to get along, as she is expecting a baby in August. If you knew how I was fixed for clothes I think you would try to help me.

ESTHER.

Wheel Chair for Mrs. A. V. B.

Editor Helping Hand:

I have an invalid wheel chair for someone in your Helping Hand.

J. F. H.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. A. V. B., who appealed for a wheel chair some time ago.

Box for Children

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a large box of children's clothing to give away. It contains things my youngsters have outgrown, so if you could find a family with children just a bit younger I think the things would fit. Some are faded, but all are otherwise in good condition. I have two girls, 10 and 12, and a girl 6.

MRS. A. S.

Thank you. We are sending you the address of M. A. F., whose family just "matches" and is a bit younger.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON SHOEMAKER'S CHILD

By DR. FRANK CRANE

WHY is it that, as a rule, lawyers make the worst jurymen and seem ill-fitted to weigh evidence, when it is their business and specialty to handle evidence and they ought to be the best judges of its value;

And preachers confess to you that they have a hard time being good, and must keep up a constant fight to prevent their moral sense from becoming obtunded by too great familiarity with the phrases and conventions of piety;

And carpenters and builders usually live in the most absurd-looking houses;

And professional comedians are proverbially melancholy;

And the successful mother of a family of a dozen will protest that she knows nothing about child training, while the old maid thinks she knows it all;

And everybody seems to know more about running a newspaper than the man that is editing it;

And the bystander always knows better what move to make than either of the two chess players;

That the head master of a boys' school sends his own boys to another institution;

And when any of the doctor's family get sick they invariably send out for another physician;

And dressmakers' children are dowdy;

And the proprietor of the high-class cigar importing house smokes stogies;

And the learned judge, at whose entrance into the court-room all arise, and who summarily fines any lawyer who talks back, cannot command the respect of his own wife and children;

And the shoemaker's children go barefoot;

And all that?

There may be many reasons, but one reason for this whole class of phenomena is

That Generalizations are safe and simple, while Particular Instance are complex and mysterious.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON THEORY AND TRUTH

By Garrett P. Serviss,

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

I OBSERVE that a Western educator urges that attention be given in schools to "teaching boys and girls how to distinguish between theory and truth." Probably by condensing his idea into a sentence he has given it a trend that he did not intend.

A theory may be just as true as a fact. The object of theory is to ascertain and explain truth. It would be a mistake to instill in the minds of youth the notion that there is any conflict between theory and truth. The aim should rather be to teach them the real nature of theory.

All science may be said to rest upon theory. There could be no organization of scientific knowledge without theory to bind facts into systems, and show how they are related by laws. A theory is a statement of human comprehension of a law of nature. It renders possible the foreseeing of natural events. Astronomers foretell eclipses by application of a theory of the planetary motions. This theory, like all others, is the product of reasoning upon observed facts and events which discloses the connections between them.

It is really only a theory that the sun will rise tomorrow morning. And that theory has been formed upon observation of the fact that the sun has always in the past, as far as record goes, risen in the manner in which we expect it to rise tomorrow. We cannot know, as a fact, that the sun has risen until we have seen it rise, but the theory that it will rise enables us to carry on human affairs as we could not do if we had no theory and no belief on the subject. If we waited to see the sun rise before believing that it would rise, where should we "be at?"

The part that theory plays in human life is so great as to constitute the chief distinction between the activities of man and those of the lower animals. In general, those creatures seem to have no theories, and so live from hand to mouth and from day to day. The provisions for the future which so many of them conspicuously make may be explained as the operation of laws of their being, of whose nature they possess no consciousness. These inherent tendencies, then, take the place of the theories with which intelligent observation, combined with higher reason, furnishes us.

You act upon the basis of theory every day of your life. In most cases you have forgotten or have not noticed, that there is any theory concerned; but if you have not worked it out for yourself, you may be sure that somebody else has worked it out for you, perhaps thousands of years ago, and the gist of his reasoning has been handed down in the shape of a theory which we all instinctively follow.

Whenever an invention of any kind is made it is the result of theory. It comes from the reasoned belief that things will continue to act in the ways in which they have hitherto been known to act, even if you make certain alterations in the circumstances.

James Watt saw the lid of a teakettle blown off by steam and theory whispered in his ear the truth that steam could drive an engine. Thomas Edison believed, theoretically, that he could make an electric current heat a carbon filament to redness and brilliant incandescence and again theory and truth shook hands. I could fill this whole page with similar instances.

Theory works in the same manner in the moral world. What we call moral certainty is theoretic certainty—based upon theory formed by reasoning on the observed connections of human actions.

Of course, there are false and mistaken theories, but they don't stand long. Instead of teaching youth to regard theory abstractly as something opposed to, or inconsistent with, truth, they should be taught that theory is truth's interpreter for all intelligences lower than Divinity.

Once-Overs

It Is Foolish to Be a "Liberal Spender" Without Having Money Enough.

Do not strive to be known as a "liberal spender."

Especially when you are with men worth many times what you are worth, you should be careful not to seem a "plunger" or a "spender."

Why? Because they would consider you foolish and you would drop in their estimation, if they realize that you cannot afford the things you do.

True then you should pay your share in a crowd, or else stay out of the crowd, but—do not be the one to suggest expenditures which are beyond your means.

When you find that you are associating with men who habitually spend more than you can afford, you should withdraw from the crowd.

A man who can spend a ten as easily as you could spend a dollar does not like to feel hampered in making suggestion for a good time in a crowd, knowing that you cannot easily keep up with the procession.

He may like your company, but he feels uneasy.

Your idea that spending freely makes a favorable impression is false.

It is pretty generally known whether a man can afford certain things.

The man who would hire you also likes to know that you can run your own affairs in a business-like manner and that you are sensible, before he trusts any part of his business to you.
